By CLARE CRAWFORD

Martha Mirchell has broken her two-month si-lence to tell details of her squabble last June over her husband's political role.

She said she has written a letter to a magazine to give her version of what happened in Newport Beach, Calif., when she was given an in-jection in the buttocks, "against my will."

Mrs. Mitchell said she was upset by a Parade Magazine tem which re-ported that Sieve King, the new security director for the Committee to Re-Elect the President, was not involved? and did not save her the injection.

Mrs. Mitchell said a doc-tor gave her the injection. Clore Crowford not King. However, she said. King neld her down while the injection was administered. "He threw me down and arcked me with his rubber soled socs." She said he burt her hand and the wound required six SHORTLY THEREAFTER, Mrs. Minchell showed a reporter bandages on her arm, and also spoke to another reporter of building her hand. The chia e tree midsequent unprinted reports that shows a remaining tion by a doctor for pain from the burnell man.

Mrs. Mitchell made her continent in a Sunday afternoon telephone call She didn't seem upset Her mood was more one of disgust this copie keep saying these things about me that are true.

A source close to Mitchell velocitiestly depied rumors and speculation that Mrs. Mitchell that have a nervous breakdown. Republicans at the tigness.

level have been whispering and inferring that Mrs. Mitchell is and has been 'ill."
"Absolutely ridiculous," said the source close to

The source pointed out that King had been promoted to security chief for the re-election committee after Mitchel's resignation. The source said that the injection had not made Mrs. Mitchell unconscious and that ther version of what happened in the Newport holel room was accurate. . . that variations in the story were simply a matter of degree."

MRS. MITCHELL said she does not know what caused King, who was then acting as her bodyguard, to pull the telephone out of the wall. She said she was in bed in her hotel room in the evening talking on the telephone to UPI reporter Helen Thomas about her demand that her husband, former Atty, Gen. John Mitchell, resign as chairman of the reelection committee.

She said she had just told Miss Thomas that politics was a dirty business when King pulled the telephone out of the wall.

Mrs. Thomas, at that time, reported she had asked Mrs. Mitchell a question about the bugging of asked Mrs. Michell a question about the bugging of the Democratic National Committee the weekend before by men allegedly connected with the re-election committee.

Mrs. Mitchell answered that she had even her misband an "ultimatum" to get out of putils or she would leave him. "Before she could go on this Thomas said. "I heard her protest: You just let

"At that point our connection was broken are attempts to get her back met with word from the operator, 'Mrs. I held is indisposed and connot alk.'"

Mrs. Mitchell said again Sunday she did no know what caused King to rip the telephone out the said be also pulled the telephone out of the room of her daughtes Mortins

MRS. MITCHELL said she was kept a prisoner in the hotel for 24 hours without food. She said her secetary, Lea Jablonsky, took Marty out to eat, but did not assist her in any way. She said she was unable to contact her husband and she was allowed to call for room service or a maid.

She said the next morning a doctor and purse came to the room. "I told the doctor all I wanted was to get these people out of here." Mrs. Mitchell sale "but he paid no attention to me and went ahead and gave me the shot.

"I should really sue the doctor," she said "Was ight did a elector have to come in a room when these isn't a member of the family present and use has requested his services?"

She said she did not know the doctor's name she knew he was a member of the stail Presbyterium Hospital at Newport Beach.

Mrs. Mitchell said Miss Jablonsky and King 'and hets; without a discipled telephone conversation appeared in the ski day's newspapers.

She also denied that she had burned her has Another newspaper story at the time reported blood n a potel curtain.

Mrs. Mitchell also said, in a second telephone of "If they don't believe me, le them talk to Many She witnessed it all PUT MYSELE in exile, but then this is Parade magazine article) came up, when maple Les about me I come out fighting She said she is adary at Parade Cam I want to set the rec straight. This Steve (King) caused all of the all Likepenen Luter Ki King replaced the bess, James 7. VeCord the as head of security in the re-election can uttee, defert was a rested with four other persons in the theast bugging attempt which occurred the week-th before Mrs. Nitchell's ultimatum.

After the bugging arrests, Mikehell who had been Centimied On Page D-3 California with his wife and President and Mrs. Wkon, returned to Washington alone.

Miss Jablonsky, reached yesterday at the re-oction committee's Young Voters for the President dice, declined to comment on Mrs. Mitchell's story. be referred questions to DeVan Shumway, director public affairs for the committee.

Shumway said, "I don't think that there's anyy I can comment on that right now."

KING WAS UNAVAILABLE at the re-election lees. A woman answering his telephone said all is from reporters had to be referred to the press

She refused to answer whether King was there ag was the last of a series of seven or eight men red by McCord to protect Mrs. Mitchell.

Mrs. Mitchell has been traveling back and forth New York recently selecting an apartment and anging to move. She expects to leave Washington next week when Marty begins classes at a Sacred eart School in New York.

Mitchell resigned as head of the re-election com-ities July 1. In a letter to President Nixon he said had to "meet the one obligation which must come est: The happiness and welfare of my wife and aughter."