Dark nemed Watergites

Charles W. Colson, special counsel to President Nixon, sent Watergate bugging figure E. Howard Hunt Jr. to Denver last March to interview International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. lobbyist Dita Beard, according to Colson's own sworn testimony

Sources close to the Water gate investigation said that Colson's testimony was given in a secret deposition to federal investigators during the Watergate probe last year.

At the time of the Denver trip, Hunt was working as a White House consultant, a position for which he had been hired on Colson's recommendation. At another time, Colson, in sworn public testi-mony, said that Hunt was not working for him at that time.

The federal investigators did not ask Colson the purpose of the interview. Other Republican sources said that it to obtain information to challenge or discredit Mrs.

Beard's controversial memo that alleged that there was a direct connection between the settlement of antitrust cases by the Justice Department and ITT's offer to help bring the 1972 GOP convention to San Diego.

Hunt traveled to Denver under the assumed name of Edward Hamilton, an alias he used during the Watergate eonspiracy, the federal sources

Republican sources said that Hunt wore an inexpensive wig during the interview with Mr.

Beard early in the week of March 19. A similar wig of dark brown or reddish color was found in one of the two was found in one of the two rooms rented by the Watergate conspirators at the Watergate Hotel before the June 17 break-in.

In a telephone interview yes In a telephone interview yes terday, Robert D. Beard, 24, the son of Mrs. Beard, said that a "mysterious" man wearing a cheap wig and make up visited his mother last March to discuss the ITrontroversy. At the time Mrs. Beard was at the Hospital in Denver being treated for a heart ailment.

"From pictures I've seen, the asitor could have been Howard Hunt," Beard said. "But I couldn't tell. The man refused to identify himself. He seemed to have inside information about what would happen next . . . but it was of relatively little value to us."

Beard described the visitor as very eeries, he did have a red wig on cockeyed like he put it on in a dark car. I couldn't have identified my brother if he was dressed like that.

A two-week investigation by The Washington Post shows that Hunt's trip was part of an effort by Colson to discredit the Dita Beard memo. The work by Hunt and Colson led at least in part to Mrs. Beard's statement issued March 17, charging that the memo was a "forgery" and "a

That statement, issued simultaneously by David W. Fleming, Mrs. Beard's lawyer, and Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, came as a total surprise since it was the first time in a threeweek-old controversy that Mrs. Beard's authorship of the memo had been directly de-

The alleged memo was reported by syndicated columnist Jack Anderson more than two weeks before the denial. It linked the antirust settlement to IPT's offer of a $400,000 "guarantee" to help support last year's Republican Manual Columnia (1981).

From federal and Republi-can sources, the following se-quence of events has been pieced together:

As the ITT controversy blos-Washington office of ITT hired Intertel, a private investigations firm, to check into Mrs. Beard's background and the authenticity of the controversial memo.

Intertel, working with only a copy of the memo, was able to establish that it was probably prepared on a typewriter in Mrs. Beard's office, but that it would be difficult, if not impossible to conclusively estabpossible to conclusively establish whether it was genuine or a forgery.

Bernard Goodrich, a spokesman for the ITT office, acknowledged last week that the Intertel investigation was inconclusive. "At no time did they give us a report to show it was for era," Goodrich said. Intertel, regarded one of the best private investigative firms, also does work for bil-lionaire Howard Hughes and corporations in his financial ampire.

The Hughes interests are represented in Washington by Robert R. Mullen & Co., a public relations firm where Hunt was employed as a writer. Robert F. Bennett, president of the Mullen firm, learned from his contacts in the Hughes empire that Intertel was probing the Dita Beard memo.

According to one account, Bennett was told that Intertel had determined the memo was a forgery and that somehow word should be passed to the White House

By another account, Bennett was told that Intertel's find-ings were inconclusive, meaning that the way was clear for someone to come forward and label the memo a forgery.

In any case, Bennett then told Hunt that the nature of the Intertel findings, whatever they were, should be passed Colson

During this period, White House was growing is creasingly concerned about the impact of the ITT alleg tions, and had launched a m jor effort to discredit columnist Jack Anderson and the memo.

At this point, Colson of dered Hunt to Denver to inteview Mrs. Beard. "Colso didn't want anything to bac fire, one Republican sourcesaid.

Meanwhile, Bennett was acing as a go-between between Colson and Fleming, Dit Beard's attorney, to arrang for the release of Mrs. Beard's attached to statement calling March 17 statement calling the memo a "forgery."

Colson wanted to avoid any direct contact between the White House and Mrs. Beard or her representative as the controversy became more po-litically sensitive. One Repub-lican source said that it was Colson who got Sen. Scott to read Mrs. Beard's statement on the Senate floor.

Fleming said in several recent telephone interviews that Colson and Hunt were not involved in issuing the statement. He did, however, acknowledge that he talked with Bennett about the matter. Bennett said last week that he would have no commen on the subject.

Mrs. Beard's March 17 statement said: 'I did not prepare it (the memo) and could not have." Without giving a reason for her assertion, Mrs. Beard continued: "I have done nothing to be ashamed of and my family and I— and in a greater sense the whole American government—are the victims of a cruel fraud."

Columnist Anderson testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee that Mrs. Bear confirmed the authenticity of the memo line-by-line with him during a Feb. 24 interview at her home.
