A major flurry of investigative activity is being launched on Capitol Hill into the Central Intelligence Agency's alleged role in the burglary of the office of the psychiatrist who treated Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

Chairmen of three separate Senate and House panels which oversee CIA operations announced yesterday that they would immediately begin inquiries into the episode.

Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi (D-Mich.), chairman of an Armed Services subcommittee on the CIA, disclosed that the agency's director, James R. Schlesinger, confirmed to him yesterday that Marine Corps Commandent Robert E. Cushman Jr. authorized use of CIA equipment in the Ellsberg burglary case.

The equipment was used by the Watergate break-in team headed by former CIA agents E. Howard Hunt Jr. and G. Gordon Liddy to burglarize the office of Dr. Lewis Fielding, Ellsberg's psychiatrist, in connection with the White House investigation of the Pentagon Papers case during 1971.

The Michigan Democrate aid Schlesinger had also orfered a wholesale review within the agency of the exent of its involvement in the Watergate case and the Alsberg investigation.

Sen. John L. McClellan D-Ark.), who heads a sepaate Appropriations subcomnittee on operations, said e is calling in top CIA witesses on Wednesday to testy about the agency's inplyment in the Pentagon apers case. Lead-off witnesses, he said, will be Schlesinger and Dr. Bernard Melloy, chief of the CIA's psychiatry division. Melloy was reportedy ordered by his superiors over his own objections to provide the White House with a psychiatrist profile of Ellsberg.

McClellan announced that former CIA Director Richard Helms, who headed the agency at the time of the Pentagon Papers investigation, will be called to testify later along with Cushman.

The 1947 statute which created the CIA decreed that the agency should "have no police, subpoena, law-enforcement powers or internal security functions," McClellan noted. The statute did, however, assign responsibility to the agency "for protecting internal security functions."

The basic responsibility for domestic surveillance against espionage and sabotage, including breaches of national intelligence, is that of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Nedzi said that his Armed Services subcommittee on the CIA will begin hearing witnesses on Thursday "to find out what they know about the situation."

He said he, too, will ask for Helms' return from Iran if the former director is personally impliacted in the Pentagon Papers break-in. "If I had to make a guess," he said, "this was not too widely known in the agency."
