

Nixon, Top Aides Take A Cruise

Washington

President Nixon, accompanied by some top aides, went for a Potomac River cruise last evening on his yacht, Sequoia.

With Mr. Nixon on the hot, humid spring evening were Army General Alexander M. Haig Jr., White House chief of staff; former Treasury Secretary John B. Connally, now a special adviser, and Bryce Harlow, former White House congressional liaison head, now reportedly as under consideration for another White House post.
