Ehrlichman Account Links Election Aides to Break-In

By DAVID E. ROSENBAUM 11 1973

Special to The New York Time

WASHINGTON, July 10 — The summary is written in John D. Ehrlichman, once one narrative form, paraphrasing of President Nixon's closest ad-wisers, has told Senate investitute interrogator's questions. gators that he believed shortly Mr. Ehrlichman, who resigned after the Watergate burglary as the President's chief domesthat high officials of the President's re-election campaign interview in the wake of Waterhad been involved in the opera- gate disclosures, denied any terview with the investigators about it. on May 4, refused to say whether he told Mr. Nixon of his be-words of the summary, aclief. Mr. Ehrlichman contended knowledged having made a conthat the doctrine of executive scious effort "to get as little privilege protected him from knowledge as possible" in the disclosing his conversations months after the June 17, 1972. with the President. A 33-page burglary at the Democratic nasummary of Mr. Ehrlichman's tional headquarters, because he interview with the staff of the knew he would have to testify Senate Watergate committee in civil proceedings arising from was prepared by the staff after- the Watergate affair. ward and was made available to The New York Times today. Continued on Page 20, Column 3 role in planning the burglary But Mr. Ehrlichman, in an in- or in covering up the facts

The former Presidential ad-

Ehrlichman Account Links Election Aides to Break-In

Continued From Page 1, Col. 7
viser also made the following points in his interview with the committee staff:

Mr. Ehrlichman told the interrogators that soon after the Watergate defendants last July, but he did not know that July, but he did not know that money had come from campaign funds.

Mr. Ehrlichman told the interrogators that soon after the Watergate defendants last July, but he did not know that president's re-election campaign funds.

Mr. Ehrlichman told the interrogators that soon after the Watergate obelieve that Jeb Stuart Machand that officials should be offered voluntiative within the burglary.

Mr. Ehrlichman said that he had been involved in the burglary.

Mr. Ehrlichman said that he had been involved in the burglary.

Mr. Ehrlichman said that Mr. Haldeman's reaction to the sugneting subtraction to the sugneting subtraction to the sugneting to the summary, making officials of the campaign officials. Among advisers about the involvement of campaign officials. Among those at the meetings with top Presidential advisers about the involvement of campaign officials. Among those at the meetings, according to the watergate defendants. Mr. Ehrlichman told the summary, making to the summary making that the had at least two group meetings with top Presidential advisers about the involvement of campaign officials. Among those at the meetings, according to the watergate defendants, Mr. Ehrlichman told find the president of campaign officials. Among those at the meetings about the involvement of campaign officials among the president of the tion was that conversations between the President and his interview today, said Mr. Ehraides were covered by executive privilege and could not be related to Senate investigators. That position has now changed, and Mr. Niron has said that his current and former aides should tell all they know to the investigators.

Mr. MacGregor, in a telephone interview today, said Mr. Ehrlichman's assertions were "utterly ridiculous," and divorced from reason or vestige of the said, it was he who held news conferences on the basis of know to the investigators.

director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and he learned later that Mr. Gray had burned the files. But he said that he had not given Mr. Gray instructions to destroy the records.

The received a $20,000 personal loan within the last year from Herbert W. Kalmbach, President Nixon's former personal lawyer, who raised money to give to the Watergate defendants.

Shift on Privilege

At the time of the staff interview with Mr. Ehrlichman shis view had been rejected because of the opposition of Mr. MacGregor and John N. Mitchell, who had resigned as campaign director on July I but who still acted as an adviser.

Mr. Ehrlichman said that Mr. Dean had told him that Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Ehrlichman said that Mr. Dean had told him that Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Ehrlichman said that Mr. Dean had told him that Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Ehrlichman said that Mr. Dean had told him that Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Ehrlichman said that Mr. Dean had told him that Mr. Dean had told him that Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to have Kalmbach's help."

Mr. Mitchell was "very anxious to hav

Deposition Expected

Mr. Mitchell took the same

WASHINGTON, July 10—
The Office of Senator Lowell P. Weicker Jr. made public today the text of a letter from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, retired, former Chief of Staff of the Army, praising the Connecticut Republican for having "the moral courage to re-state Americanism age to re-state Americanism at its best."

General Ridgway's letter, dated June 29, urged Sena-tor Weicker to "feel free to tor Weicker to "feel free to publish, or otherwise to use this expression of my views as you may deem proper."

The letter was apparently prompted by General Ridgway's having watched the Watergate committee hearings on television on the related to Senate investigators. That position has now truth."

That position has now changed, and Mr. Niron has said that his current and former aides should tell all they know to the investigators.

According to Senate officials, Mr. Ehrlichman has not been interrogated since the May interview. But they said that he would be questioned again before he testifies in public before the committee. Mr. Ehrlichman's public appearance is not public testimony before the latting of the truth."

All during that period, he said, it was he who held news conferences on the basis of "what Ehrlichman and others told me" about the matter. He was, he said with anger in his notice, "incensed" by Mr. Ehrlichman what he knew about the financing of the Watergate operation.

Mr. Mitchell took the same position in his public testimony today, saying that he thought the money was for a legitimate defense fund.

Mr. Ehrlichman confirmed in his staff interview that Hugh W. Sloan Jr., the former campaign treasurer, had tried soon after the burglary to tell Mr. Ehrlichman what he knew about the financing of the Watergate operation.

Mr. Mitchell took the same position in his public testimony today, saying that he thought the money was for a legitimate defense fund.

Mr. Ehrlichman confirmed in his staff interview that Hugh W. Sloan Jr., the former campaign treasurer, had tried soon after the burglary to tell Mr. Ehrlichman what he knew about the financing of the Watergate operation.

Mr. Mitchell took the same position in his public testimony today, saying that he thought the money was for a legitimate defense fund.

Mr. Ehrlichman confirmed in his staff interview that Hugh W. Sloan Jr., the former campaign treasurer, had tried soon after the burglary to tell Mr. Ehrlichman what he knew about the financing of the Watergate operation.

But Mr. Ehrlichman defense fund.

Mr. Ehrlichman has not been in his position in his public testimony today, saying that he therefore the said that he and the said, it was he who held news today, saying that