Second Watergate Grand July Is Called

By DAVID A. ANDELMAN Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, July 19 WASHINGTON, July 19 — Judge John J. Sirica ordered today that a second Watergate grand jury be empaneled at the request of the special prosecutor, Archibald Cox, whose office indicated that the volume of material ready for presentation was more than the original grand jury could handle.

tation was more than the original grand jury could handle.

The second grand jury will empaneled Aug. 13 and, sources close to the office of Mr. Cox said, will investigate all alleged violations of campaign procedures apat from the break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate complex June 17, 1972.

At the same session in Unit-

At the same session in United States District Court today, Judge Sircia also ordered sealed a brown envelope contain-ing alleged evidence developed cial prosecutors, presented a letter from Mr. Cox that stated, "I believe it would be neces-"I believe it would be necessary and in the public interest Mr. Cox said, "This would be a sary and in the public interest that a grand jury be empaneled as soon as convenient to investigate possible violations' of five sections of the United States Criminal Code.

The New York Tin Judge John J. Sirica

The original Watergate the Watergand jury was empaneled last July to investigate the Watergate grand jury had been burglary and bugging. Last Sept. 15 the jury indicted seven persons.

Mr. Cox said, "This would be a the watergand jury for the use of the Watergate special prosecution force under my direction." Sources close to the investigation noted also that the old Watergage grand jury had been empaneled by the Sunited Statgate Sept. 15 the jury indicted seven persons. That jury, which is still meeting regularly, was empaneled for 18 months and will continue its formal existence through January, 1974.

The new grand jury will continue its meetings at the same time, but its scope is expected.

time its meetings at the same time, but its scope is expected to be substantially wider, covering a variety of illegal campaign practices during the 1972 Presidential campaign.

Sources close to the special Watergate prosecutor's office Said that the areas to be coveruption and further evidence in ered by the new grand jury that case may also be presented, though not by Mr. Cox's office.

The sources indicated that it was likely that Mr. Cox wanted how own grand jury with which he could begin afresh in new areas of evidence in which his prosecution staff has been working.

The other action ordered by Judge Sirica — the sealing of evidence accumulated against Mr. Strachan — was apparently a first step toward prosecution of Mr. Strachan, who is expected to be the next witness before the Senate Watergate committee. Judge Sirica ordered the sealed evidence placed in a safe. ordered the seplaced in a safe.

James F. Neal, another Cox assistant, said in his oral argument before Judge Sirica that "this is the same procedure" used for the public testimony of Jhn W. Dean 3d, the former counsel to President chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman.

Judge Sirica acted so that prosecution of Mr. Strachan would not be joepardized by allowing the evidence to become "tainted" by Mr. Strachan's public appearance soon before the Senate Watergate committee.

Cox Sends a Letter

At this afternoon's court session, Richard Ben-Veniste, a former Assistant United States Attorney in Manhattan and now one of the Watergate a letter from Mr. Cox that stated, "I believe it would be served as letter to be considered by the component of the would be served by allowing the evidence to become "tainted" by Mr. Strachan have been granted limited immunity from prosecution. Under this provision, none of the evidence that the two present to the Senate Watergate committee may be used officials and obstruction of justice.

The area of corporate campaign financing statutes, conspiracy to defraud the United States Government, campaign contributions by corporations, extortion by Federal officials and obstruction of justice.

The area of corporate campaign financing limited immunity from prosecution. Under this provision, none of the evidence that the two present to the Senate Watergate committee may be used officials and obstruction of justice.

The area of corporate campaign cantributions and extoration is expected to include a broad variety of corporate committee.

At this afternoon's court session, Richard Ben-Veniste, a former Assistant United States Attorney in Manhattan and now one of the Watergate special prosecution of justice.

A Separate Jurisdiction of justice immunity from prosecution cution. Under this provision, none of the evidence that the two present to the Senate Watergate committee may be used in their criminal prosecution can prove that the evidence was developed in the