

Jaworski Expects Indictments Soon

Washington

Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski said yesterday that the Watergate grand juries have already received enough evidence to begin considering major indictments this month and in February.

In an eight-page, year-end report, the prosecutor also noted that eight corporations and 12 persons have pleaded guilty to charges growing out of the various investigations conducted by his office. The list did not include the seven men convicted early last year in the June 17, 1972, break-in at the Democratic National headquarters in the Watergate

Jaworski's statement, which contained no elaboration, said:

"Although investigations in various areas within the special prosecutor's jurisdiction are continuing, including the review of White House files, the presentation of evidence to the grand juries has progressed to the point that in January and February these bodies will be prepared to consider the matter of returning indictments in a substantial number of major involvements."

Jaworski's 30-member prosecution force is probing such matters as the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. antitrust settlement, illegal political contributions, and "dirty tricks" during the 1972 campaign

Washington Post