Nitze, a Democrat, Scheduled for Key Pentagon Post

By LESLIE H. GELB Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8-In a move that may affect the balance of influence on national security issues within the Administration, President Nixon is expected to nominate Paul H. Nitze to a high Pentagon post next week.

Mr. Nitze, 66 years old and a lifelong Democrat with wide experience in government, is scheduled for the job of Assistant Secretary of Defense for International Security Affairs or head of what is known as the "Pentagon's State Department."

The appointment is expected by some Congressmen and others in Washington to strenghen the Pentagon's hand in the Congress, where Mr. Nitze is regarded as a strong advocate of increased defense spending, and against the State Department.

James R. Schlesinger, of Secretary of State. Kissinger's policy of giving relations with the original containment doctrine during the Truman Administrafor his belief that relations with Communist superpowers are inherently unstable and competitive, and that Commu-established expertise. nist countries ultimately respond only to strength.

Containment Doctrine

Some of his former associcreasing direct contacts with war and that direct participa-Moscow and Peking.

United Press International Paul H. Nitze

Given Mr. Nixon's views, there has been speculation He is expected to be another among those in the Congress skeptic in the Administration, who have known of the imalong with Defense Secretary pending appointment about its

Does it signify a shift in Soviet Union and China, top President Nixon's own think-priority in foreign affairs. ing about foreign policy priorities? Is it a move not to shift, One of the framers of the but to balance the Kissinger views? Did the President have much to say about the appointtion, Mr. Nitze is well known ment or was it something that for his belief that relations.

Mr. Schlesinger insisted on? Or is the move without policy significance and merely one that makes use of Mr. Nitze's long-

Opposed Vietnam War

One former colleague of Mr. ates believe that he will argue Nitze called him "the smartest, for again giving relations with most knowledgeable hawk in the North Atlantic Treaty allies town." Whatever his reputaand Japan top priority in fortion as a hawk, he was one eign policy. The Nixon Admin- of the earlier opponents of the istration's relations with this Vietnam war. As a high Pencountry's principal allies have tagon official during the Kenbeen strained over the last five nedy and Johnson administrayears, in part because they tions, he argued that the Viet-have been bypassed in the intion by the United States rest of the world.

chairman of a United States Defense. strategic bombing survey con-

American delegation at the fairs to the influential role that talks on the limitation of stra- it played in the 60's. For the tegic arms. In this role, he has last five years, it has generally been seen as a proponent of the been viewed as moribund. "bargaining chip" approach to regotiations with Moscow, as tion within the national secua supporter of the antiballistic rity bureaucracy. All formal missile system, and as an ad-communications coming into or vocate of increasing reliance going out of the Pentagon must on missiles launched from sub- be screened it. marines rather than Minuteman land-based missiles.

Congress, will be stepping back to the State Department.

weakened its position in the into a job that he held in the early '60's. From 1967 to 1969 With his experience as vice he was Deputy Secretary of

Mr. Schlesinger had been ducted after World War II, Mr. searching for several months Nitze also argued against the for a man to fill the fourth prevailing belief in the effec- highest job at the Pentagon, tiveness of bombing North expressing to many colleagues his wish to restore the Office Mr. Nitze is a member of the

This allows it to represent diplomatic considerations to the Mr. Nitze, if confirmed by military and military interests