t. Clair's Letter to Rodino

WASHINGTON, May VF—Following is the text of a letter from James D. St. Clair, special counsel to President Nixon, sent today to Representative Peter W. Rodino Jr., chairman of the Hous? Judiciary committees ary committees

Under the rules of confidentiality adopted by your committee, no matters discussed in executive sessions are to be made public. In response to your request, I pledged to abide by these rules of confidentiality and have done so.

have done so.

The experience of the three executive sessions to date demonstrates quite clearly that there is hope that the committee's rules of confidentiality will be observed. The reports in the media last night and today provide clear evidence that the evidentiary materials presented in the committee meetings are being discussed in detail with representatives of the media and, what is even worse, are and, what is even worse, are being characterized by mem-bers of the committee in a distorted and extremely prejudicial manner.

It has also come to my attention that at least one of the documents prepared by the committee staff and presented to the committee in executive session was in the possssion of reporters from

The Washington Post last night.

The selective "leaking" of information from executive sessions of your committee in violation of the committee rules is prejudicing the basic right of the President to an impartial inquiry on the evidence.

I have discussed this mat-ter with the President and, at his direction, I respectfully request that all further proceeding of your committee be conducted in open session so that the American people can be fully informed with regard to all the evidence presented. I further request that the record of the executive sessions to date also be made public.
