

High Court's Last Session

Washington

The Supreme Court announced yesterday it will hold its last session of the current term today. The only matter pending is a Detroit school desegregation case.

The court normally recesses for the summer in June but its session was extended to rule on whether President Nixon had to surrender Watergate material.

United Press
