Krogh Disbarred

OLYMPIA, Wash.—Former White House “plumbers” chief Egil Krogh Jr. was disbarred by the State Supreme Court for his role in the burglary of the Los Angeles office of Daniel Ellsberg’s psychiatrist.

In a 7 to 2 finding, the court agreed with the recommendation of the State Bar Association that Krogh should be barred from practicing law in Washington state.

Krogh is now an aide to Rep. Paul N. McCloskey (R-Calif.).

A disbarred attorney may seek reinstatement after three years.

The court cited Krogh’s conviction in U.S. District Court last year on a single charge of conspiracy against the rights of citizens in connection with the Ellsberg burglary.
