A friendly prediction about Nixon's book

WASHINGTON — Richard Moore, former counsel to Richard Nixon whose face became familiar to millions during the Senate Watergate hearings but who came out of Watergate with his reputation intact, has seen the first 40 pages of the former President's memoirs. "Just say," he said, "it's going to be a great book."

It will certainly stir up more interest than LBJ's, he said, because Johnson himself was already an open book. Did he suggest any changes? "Yes, I did, and he grudgingly agreed," replied the smiling Moore who said he is looking for a new venture for himself. He wants to buy two or three TV stations.
