10/12/71 Dear Js, a hurried note to acknowledge your two generous mailings of the 6th. I'm not reading them now because I want to try and keep as much as possible of what is in my mind there until I can finish considering some suggestions for changes in the panel part of POST MORTEM and complete the taping of the correction of typos on the last eight pages of the last part so I can xerox and copyright. The publisher of our local paper is going to let me use his machine, so I want to be read between editions, when his traffic will be less. Thanks for all that stuff, and one other word until I can write at greater length: Lil has worked her way up to the beginning of the lettering. There was a confrontation between Kunstler (not at his best) and Buckley (at his most unspeakable) on the David Frost Show last night and I stopped to look at it with her. HW
