

In writing a friend about something else I was reminded of my collecting for I, Spy. Do you know that the prinsoer who disappeared at the time of the Jackson murder at San Q turned out to be exactly what was suggested in some of STM's clips? And have The Glasshouse Tapes appeared, in any form? I've not heard...Hearing that Farr went to see Douglas today and getting ~~xxx~~ The Orangeburg Massacre down to read while waiting for Lil remind me that as I'd expected ~~but~~ hoped against, they never acknowledged my letter...One of the enclosed stories from today's Post has Paul Velentine in a joint National Desk by-liner, from the Pentagon. On that and Friedheim, TV has been infinitely better than anything I've seen in the Post or heard attributed to anyone, both NBC and CBS. They have aired Friedheim in his own hideous face and words. And one I think was CBS' Bob Pierpoint (off camera) reall kept after him yesterday on the hospital. Hope it was radio aired... Sometime in the dark of night before last, when I was listening to WBBM in my sleep, there was mention of a new Chinese cookbook. The author sounded like Pearl Buck...Kirkwood has a new real deep study, P.S., Our Pussycat Is Dead. Somebody at that station must like him, perhaps ~~xxx~~ as he felt an affinity for Shaw, because they aired a rather dull interview with him twice on different early-mornings that I heard. He thinks the movies should be fighting for it, naturally. HW 1/3/72
