

Separately, in a white No. 10 envelope, I'll be mailing you today's Post "Peace" and VN coverage, a large proportion of the main news section, and a separate section on VN that I've not taken time to read. If you don't want it, probably Howard might. I could not resist an URGE today, so I roughed out a sample/opening/summary chapter of a book on The Watergate, in the probably forlorn hope that the one place I have an agent, in London, there might be some interest in one of their sensational journals. It is very rough, very hasty. I should never have taken Lil to visit old friends of Senate investigating days yesterday and we should never have stayed up until after 1 a.m. bullsessioning about those days after we got home! If you want to take the time to read these 8 pages, I have a carbon, the ribbon copy and I've made an electrostatic copy in case I ask my Bantam friend for an opinion of the possibilities, which I think are probably remote for any serious, honest work and more so for anything from me. As you will see, STM's Who's Whoing was very helpful. The number of "unt's books, by the way, if you have not caught up with the clippings, is 46, according to Bittman. Makes one wonder how he had time to spook, or about the time he could have put into spooking. (Or, do spooks have ghosts?) I didn't tape the radio broadcast of that Buckley show today as I said I would having ordered transcripts for us both. However, I did check so for the future, radio here follows TV by a week.
