Dear Harold:

About time we had some understanding about the WX Post. You appear to be buying an extra copy of the daily edition every day on our behalf, so that makes at least 90 cents a week, as I understand the street sale price is 15¢, not counting any Sunday edition, and not counting postage, gas, wear and tear, and whatever copying you do for us. I'd suggest you let us know whether we're approximately even with the game as of now (counting the enclosed), and estimate as well as you can how much this is costing you per week, month, or whatever, and say from what date such figuring should be done. In other words, let's get this on some sort of regular basis so we can be sure you're not out any cash on our behalf. Looks like some sort of arrangement is going to be necessary, since WG and other interesting subjects continue very much with us. Okay? In the meantime, we know you'll try to hold the stuff you do send to the minimum of what seems likely we'd not see elsewhere. Many thanks.

Besides the enclosed stuff, we're getting off a small 3c mailing, including the copy of the appeals court decision which Howard sent. Glad to have seen it. Everything much clearer. We thought Danaher's dissent not unhelpful to you and extremely interesting.

The tax gal we wound up with worked out fine. She was happy to see Lil's proposed arrangements and said Lil "has some very good ideas." She and another woman tax consultant audited each other's accounts, and both came around when Miss Myers arrived yesterday with our prepared returns. Both are cat fans. And Miss Myers turns out to be a native of Kunming, the daughter of a diplomat who was in China when I was but whom I can't remember having met, although I remember his name well. Old home week. Best,  jdw
