JDW: That I like "Ambassador Nixon" is probably the best guarantee that the NYTimes won't. Beginning on p. 4 are some particularly interesting thoughts I've not seen anywhere. They did not occur to me, either. Some of the dry wit is marvelous! But I'm afraid maybe Ron the ^{leg} ~~big~~ (as in Heil!) may have bombed you in his Today interview.

He says GL's only ambitions are literary.

I fear informative writing suffers the fate of truth: no matter how short the supply, the supply exceeds the demand.

You've got a first-rate point on the cancellation of the wheat orders by both giants.

It sure is a sign they expect no war. Not even one we'd be involved in without them.

The close is great. It is also a reminder that Ford is capable of anything.

Good luck with it. MW 2/14/75
