

Dear Jim, Last night the ecstatic Wrones phoned. You meant so much to them! They learned so much from you, too. Even from the illustrations you used. They could not stop praising everything about you. You impressed them enormously in every way, which is a source of great satisfaction to me also. They already have regrets coming from the belief it may never be possible for you to return and carry forward what you did do while you were there. (Elaine was concerned that you may have tired yourself too much.) They found your store of knowledge and the wisdom that has meant so much to me impossible to believe and it left them simply enthralled. While everything about what they said is wonderful and important and they said so much without repetition I can't remember it all - as you realize they didn't have to so it is genuine - my guess is that one of the most important understandings you gave them is the value of clippings. The way you put it and the way you illustrated it is a new dimension for them. ...So I think it is all fine, wonderful. ...When you have time I'd appreciate your appraisal of Deloyd, to whom I've never spoken, and any suggestions you may pass along with regard to him and to being helpful to him. Especially if you were able to detect any weaknesses in what I suppose is new to him outside his scholar's experiences so that I may be able to be more helpful from any such understanding. ...Many thanks. ...Hope your trip back was pleasant. Best, HW 4/24/78
