JURY PANEL PICKED BERRIGAN T

From Its 46 Members

late today.

After 11 days of intensive questioning of more than 80 residents of central Pennsylvania, a panel was found that mirrored a predominatly white. Protestant, conservative area that has remained relatively untouched by the uproar over the Vietnam conflict.

Tomorrow the defense and Government attorneys will exercise a total of 34 peremptory challenges to reduce the panel to 12 regular members. Then, six alternate jurors must be selected, a process that may take two or more days before the Government opens its case against the Rev. Philip Berriagan and six other antiwar activists.

Loss of Rights Seen

The belated discovery that a Harrisburg bartender had once been convicted and fined $100 on a gun charge caused his dismissal as a potential juror and delayed the completion of the delayed the completion of the derondants are three conominal convictions than white Americans."

The bartender was replaced by a bearded, long-haired youth who said he believed that prolonging the war would only result in "wasting lives."

The bartender was replaced by a bearded, long-haired youth who said he believed that prolonging the war would only result in "wasting lives."

The youth, who wore flaring dungarees and a tight fitting bersey, gave the first mod touch to the staid middle-aged panel.

Defense attorneys had been asking every potential juror if he had any prejudice against youth with long hair who wore unconventional clothing. Now the chief prosecutor, William S. Lynch, noting the youth's shoulder-length tresses, provoked laughter by asking whether the youth would have a bias against "clean-shaven F.B.I. men."

"To each his own," the youth shrugged.

Veteran Is Excused

missal as a potential juror and shrugged. panel for several hours this rights had never been abrople who died." He was replaced gated as a result of any crimby a woman who kept a coun-12 Jurors Will Be Selected could not be disqualified as a son who served in the marines, juror.

"disqualification of jurors on their military duty; the Army By HOMER BIGART

Special to The New York Times

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 7—A 46-member panel from which 12 jurors will be selected for the trial of the Harrisburg Seven was finally completed late today.

After 11 days of intensive questioning of more than 80 residents of central Pennsylvania, a panel was found that mirrored a predominatly white, Protestant, conservative area

"disqualification of jurors on grounds of minor criminal convictions, when applied against jurors of the black race, operates to systematically reduce the percentage of black jurors available for service, since black Americans, by virtue of their historically oppressed social condition and lack of certain opportunities in our economy, have statistically rates to systematically reduce the percentage of black jurors
available for service, since
black Americans, by virtue of their military duty; the Army veteran had been to Vietnam.
The completed panel consists of 19 men and 27 women. Only eight have gone beyond high school. The majority have come from small towns and rural neighborhoods. Fewer than 10 said they tried to keep abreast of the daily news.

The defendants are three Roman Catholic priests and a nun, a former priest, a former nun and a Pakistani scholar.
They are charged with con-

Veteran Is Excused

morning.

The defense protested the decision of District Judge R.
Dixon Herman to dismiss the black bartender on a challenge by the Government. The defense noted that only three blacks remained on the panel. his reading was confined to The defense attorneys argued "the hunting and fishing colvainly that the bartender's civil umns, the funnies and the peoinal conviction and that he try store and had raised one one in the Army and one in argued further that the Air Force. All had survived