Green Berets Face A Big Cut in Forces As Policies Change

NOV 1 6 1970

By WILLIAM BEECHER

Special to The New York Times
WASHINGTON, Nov. 15

The Special Forces, the United States Army's specialists in guerrilla warfare and military intelligence operations, are facing a major cutback in their strength as a result of a basic change of emphasis on what their primary mission should be.

About 9,000 men wear the green beret now. In the next two to three years this number will be cut to about 6,000, Pentagon sources said.

More important than the loss of manpower, senior officers in the Special Forces say, is the changing view of the role they will play in the future.

Special Forces leaders say the attitude of the United States toward its military role has changed dramatically since the early sixties.

Maj. Gen. Edward M. Flanagan Jr., commander of the Special Forces, said in a recent interview at his headquarters at Fort Bragg, N. C., that the Administration policy known as the Nixon doctrine reflected a determination to help allies defend themselves, but not do it for them.

Continued on Page 2, Column 4

The national leadership, he contends, needs some options between doing nothing and getting, involved in another war like the one in Vietnam.

Reflecting a view shared by many planners in Washington's planners became ting involved in another war like the one in Vietnam.

Reflecting a view shared by many planners in Washington's planners became trained to slip into enemy territory where they will tap phone lines and watch troop move. General Flanagan said that in many nations in the "third world" the military was a key element in the balance of power. "If we can work with the source of power."

While the Special Forces will still develop small teams of experts capable of dropping into hostile territory and forming large indigenous forces of guerillas—their prime assignments since their organization was established in 1952—the emphasis is now reported to be shifting to two other missions, which in the past were regarded as secondary.

New Type of Mission as secondary.

New Type of Mission

New Type of Mission

One, will be the development of small training teams to move into an underdeveloped country for six months or less to instruct the local armed forces in techniques of combating insurgency or banditry, or in methods of winning popularity in lof the Spacial Forces 18 years. for six months of the sources sale.

It is truct the local armed forces in techniques of combating insurgency or banditry, or in methods of winning popularity in the backwoods by building roads and dispensaries, digging wells and setting up schools.

Training dent, the sources sale.

National policy has shifted three times since the formation of the Special Forces 18 years ago, resulting in shifts in the primary mission of the Green Berets.

ods of winning popularity in the backwoods by building roads and dispensaries, digging wells and setting up schools. One such 50-man training team was rushed to Bolivia in 1967 and spent 90 days training a group of recruits into a ranger battalion, whose mission was to "neutralize" a band of insurgents led by Ernesto Che Guevara. Two weeks after completing training the battalion when the special Forces 18 years tenant colonels with advanced degrees in economics, political science, history and sociology. One general who has served in similar assignments himself said he had letters from two American ambassadors asking him to recommend well-qualified Army men who could join the third rembassies immediately. The general, who asked not to be identified, said: "We seek pletting training the battalion launched and when emigres in economics, political science, history and sociology. One general who has served in similar assignments himself said he had letters from two American ambassadors asking him to recommend well-qualified Army men who could join the complex to the interval of the complex in the primary mission of the Green berets.

The general who has served in similar assignments himself said he had letters from two American ambassadors asking him to recommend well-qualified Army men who could join the rembassies immediately. The general, who asked not to be identified, said: "We seek a corps of soldier-statesmen and when emigres in economics, political science, history and sociology. One general who has served in similar assignments himself said he had letters from two two in similar assignments himself said he had letters from two two in similar assignments himself said he had letters from two two in similar assignments himself said he had letters from two two in similar assignments himself said he had letters from two two in similar assignments himself said he had letters from two two in similar assignments himself said he had letters from two in the promoter in the promoter in the promoter in the promoter in to emplace and detonate a small atomic demolition charge

pleting training the battalion captured the guerrilla leader, from the Soviet Union and eastwood who, if we had had several of ern European nations were them in the early days of Vietnam, armed forces in how to gather and use military intelligence.

Another team is now instructing the Iranian armed forces in how to gather and use military intelligence.

Continued From Page 1, Col. 1

Still another team is in Thailand training Laotians to use armored scout cars against the Nixon doctrine reflected a determination to help allies defend themselves, but not do it.

Still another team is in Thailand training Laotians to use armored scout cars against North Vietnamese troops operhind the lines in the event of war to form guerrilla and sabolians.

The other types of the Special Forces consisted primarily of emigres trained to drop behind the lines in the event of war to form guerrilla and sabolians to use armore desired.

The other types of the Special Forces consisted primarily of emigres trained to drop behind the lines in the event of war to form guerrilla and sabolians to use armore desired.

Assistance, which General Flanagan also heads, has recently initiated some courses to prepare Army officers better for foreign military assignments.

A new 20-week course is aimed at producing eventually 500 to 1,000 senior Army officers to serve as heads of mili-ficers to serve as heads of mili-tary aid missions or attachés abroad who are sensitive to social, political and economic questions as well as military matters. An attempt is being made to recruit majors and lieutenant colonels with advanced

Reconnaissance Course Taught

Another new course, which lasts four weeks, is designed to teach officers about to go abroad how to help foreign military men make effective use of American arms and special training that might be made available.

A special six-week course on strategic reconnaissance missions was recently opened at the center. A high proportion of the Special Forces men in the current course will be sent to Southeast Asia after completing their studies.

To help Army intelligence officers to become advisers in South Vietnam's Phoenix program, which seeks to root out members of the Vietcong. apparatus of tax collectors and propagandists, the center has begun a 12-week course, in which half of the time is spent teaching the Vietnamese language.

See also C.L. Sulzberger ("The answer may well lie in the field of truly tactical atomic weapons"), filed North Vietnam, 17 Nov 70.

War crimes/nuclear weapons