Humphrey Brands  As 'Sad' C.I.A. Aid  To Student Groups  2 AES $\mathrm{CHC}_{7}$  By IAAWRENCE E. DAVIES

Special to The New York Times
PALO ALTO, Calif., Feb. 20 - Vice President Humphrey said today the financing of student groups by the Central In telligence Agency represented "one of the saddest times, in reference to public policy, our Government has had.
He voiced hope for a "re formation of the C.I.A. that would confine the agency to "intelligence-gathering purposes.
Mr. Humphrey answered questions in Memorial Auditorium on the Stanford University ampus before a capacity audience of 1,700 . About 250 students and faculty members walked out, by prearrangement during the session, drawing this observation from the Vice Presi Gent:
*The first sign of immaturity, dogma and doctrine and intel lectual tyranny is a person's unwillingness to stay and listen."
His comment brought a standing ovation from some or the remaining crowd.
'Not At All Happy'
Mr. Humphrey visited Stanford at the invitation of the University Political Union. He appeared at an hour-long ques-appeared at an hour-answer session with a panel of students and faculty members putting questions to him.

On the issue of the intelligence agency giving financial aid to the National Student Association and other groups, he said "These student organizaions should remain free and independent."
He said he was "not at all happy about what the C.I.A. has been doing" and said he wa glad President Johnson had asked for a full investigation
Some in the audience laughed when, asked to differentiate be tween President Johnson's views on Vietnam during the cam paign in 1964 and those o Barry Goldwater, the Republi can Presidential nominee, Mr Humphrey replied:
"First, President Johnson is a man of restraint. He seeks to achieve limited objectives

After the meeting, a brie scuffle among students and policemen took place as Mr Humphrey entered his car an headed for San Francisco.

