

... Now Garrison says a group of Cubans lurked behind a signboard in Dallas that day. At this point, that information holds all the suspicion or innocence that the reader might wish to impute to it. For that is all that Garrison has said about it.

One of the men now allegedly sought by Garrison's investigators is supposed to be Manuel Garcia Gonzales. No one outside the prosecutor's office seems to know who he is, but allegedly Garrison and some of his staff spent about four days in the Miami area last month at the ~~Exuma~~ Racquet Club while in search of Gonzales.

Gonzales is supposed to be one of the men behind the billboard in Dallas. Gonzales also has been casually named as having a connection with Carlos Marcello, a local Mafia tupe.