Says Investigation Into Plot
Becoming 'Roman Circus'

NEW ORLEANS, March 6— District Attorney Jim Garrison came under sharp criticism from the American Civil Liberties Union of Louisiana today as his office subpoenaed a new "witness" in its investigation into the assassination of President Kennedy.

The Civil Liberties Union accused Mr. Garrison, who was not available for comment, of turning his investigation into a "Roman circus" and of attempting to convict people in the press rather than in the courtroom.

Meanwhile, Mr. Garrison's investigators subpoenaed and questioned J. B. Dauenhauer, a bookkeeper for the Cross Country Development Corporation.

Although the district attorney's office would not discuss the reasons for issuing the subpoena, it was known that Mr. Dauenhauer once was an assistant in the International Trade Mart here to Clay L. Shaw.

Mr. Shaw has been arrested but not formally charged by Mr. Garrison's office.

Irving Dymond, Mr. Dauenhauer's attorney, said his client "cooperated to the utmost" during the questioning, which took little more than an hour. "In my opinion," Mr. Dymond added, "Mr. Dauenhauer has nothing to do with any conspiracy if one existed."

Mr. Dauenhauer was the fifth person subpoenaed by Mr. Garrison's office within the last week. Of the other four, only Mr. Shaw was arrested.

Mr. Garrison has occasionally attacked local reporters for interfering with an investigation that he says will prove that a plot led to the death of President Kennedy, but he has made no effort to conceal subpoenaed witnesses from public view.

He has a private elevator, once used to provide maximum secrecy for grand jury witnesses, which runs from a parking lot in the basement of the Criminal Court Building here into his office. However, the district attorney's office has not put the private elevator at the disposal of any of the five witnesses it has subpoenaed.

Would Have Volunteered

Instead, the witness walk in and out of the district attorney's office by way of the stairs, past a crowd of photographers, television cameramen and reporters, who gather at the top of the stairs to watch for the latest development in the investigation.

In at least two of the instances in which Mr. Garrison's office has issued subpoenas, the witnesses have indicated they were willing to cooperate voluntarily in the Kennedy investigation.

Dante Marochini, who was subpoenaed last Friday, said he had no objection to being subpoenaed, but would have submitted to questioning voluntarily.

And a friend of another subpoenaed witness, James Lewallen, described Mr. Lewallen as being "shocked" that he had been subpoenaed. He said Mr. Lewallen had been cooperating with the district attorney's office privately for weeks, and could not understand why he had been suddenly subpoenaed and required to show up at the office at a time when many newsmen were present.

In its statement today, the Civil Liberties Union said it had criticized Mr. Garrison last August for attempting to try two defendants "in the press rather than in the courtroom."

The organization said it suggested then that the district attorney read two canons in the Louisiana Bar Association's Code of Ethics, which urge attorneys to minimize pretrial publicity and state that "the primary duty of a lawyer engaged in a public prosecution is not to convict but to see that justice is done."

"Since August," the Civil Liberties Union said, Mr. Garrison has not changed his spots."

"Assuming that he [Mr. Garrison] has a genuine case against conspirators," the Liberties Union went on, "his present activity could quite possibly serve to protect those guilty of a conspiracy to assassinate President John F. Kennedy."

"Under these circumstances, it appears that Mr. Garrison should be making every effort to make his case as valid as possible, so that the accused conspirators might be brought to justice, rather than giving his role as publicist first priority."

Doubt on Warren Report

Most Americans believe that the Warren Commission report on the assassination of President Kennedy did not tell the whole story, according to the Harris Poll, published in yesterday's New York Post.

However, the poll shows that 70 per cent of the people believe that Lee Harvey Oswald killed the President, and, of that number, 44 per cent to 35 per cent think he did it as part of a broader plot.

The poll shows that by a margin of 59 to 30 per cent, Americans believe that the full story of the assassination has not been made public. Despite this, 58 per cent are opposed to reopening the investigation. The questions were asked last September and then again last month.
