Charles de Gaulle believes the police in the United States knew that President Kennedy would be assassinated, and that they wanted Lee Harvey Oswald to be killed. In "La Tragédie du Général," the author, Jean-Raymond Tournoux, quotes President de Gaulle as saying after the assassination of President Kennedy in 1963:

"The police did the job, or they ordered it done, or else they let it happen. In any case, they were involved in it. It is always thus in a country torn by racial hatreds, where the Gaulle is also they could start a Communist so they could start a Communist witch-hunt and that the police on at least some the police, or at least some the police, or at least some the police wanted people to believe that Oswald was a fanatical Communist so they could start a Communist witch-hunt and that the police of them, are in league with the oppressors."

The book will be published tomorrow by Plon and by Kennedy," Mr. Tournoux writes.
