NEW ORLEANS AP - Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison, pushing for a conspiracy conviction in the Clay Shaw trial, issued a subpoena Thursday for a Dallas woman who purportedly has a photo that would help prove that shots were fired from several directions in the assassination of President Kennedy.

Garrison's subpoena said the prosecution was informed Friday that Mary Moorman has a picture which, with other evidence, "will establish that shots were fired into the presidential limousine from more than one direction."

The contention that shots came from more than one direction forms a key part in the state's case against Shaw, 55, a retired New Orleans businessman.

The exact nature of Mrs. Moorman's evidence was not disclosed, but the subpoena said she snapped a picture less than one second after the last shot or shots struck Kennedy in Dallas on Nov. 22, 1963.

James L. Alcock, assistant district attorney, said Mrs. Moorman purportedly has a picture of the controversial grassy knoll near the assassination scene.

Asked if the prosecution's use of the evidence hinged on interpretation of the photograph, Alcock replied: "Yes. I think so."

He said he believed the evidence was made available to the Warren Commission, which made an official investigation into the PRESIDENT'S DEATH.

The commission found no credible evidence of a conspiracy and said that Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone, shot and killed the president. Oswald himself was killed by Dallas nightclub operator Jack Ruby, who died of cancer in prison.

The state's subpoenas, which also summoned two Dallas motorcycle policemen to appear Feb. 2, were issued as the drawn out process of selecting a jury slowed even more. Eighteen prospective jurors were examined and all excused during a morning session lasting only 26 minutes.

"I had no idea that we would go through 18 jurors in so short a period of time," said Judge Edward A. Haggerty Jr. of Criminal District Court.

Most of the jurors were excused when they declared they had fixed opinions in the case. One man, William Frederick Vincent, revealed that he was a citizen of Costa Rica, and he was excused by Haggerty.

Judge Haggerty, a stout, grey-haired man, thanked Vincent for the information. He turned to the clerk. "By the way, I want the jury commissioner to take him off the jury list," Haggerty said.

Five jurors have been seated in the case.

Haggerty said at the recess that there were 608 names of prospective jurors left on court lists. If these are not enough, he said he would summon still more, 250 at a time.

New Orleans Shaw NL sub for last two grafs: a time.

Two more jurors were selected Thursday, bringing to six the total empaneled after three days. The sixth was a youthful gun enthusiast, James C. O'Quinn, a petroleum engineer.

O'Quinn, answering a prosecution question, ventured the opinion that it was possible to get off three shots in the time calculated by the Warren Commission, which concluded only one gunman-Oswald-fired shots in the assassination.

"But," said O'Quinn, "just a common, everyday person couldn't do it," he did not elaborate.

The other juror seated Thursday was Herbert J. Kenison, employe of a microfilm company.

The judge announced he was convening court an hour earlier, at 9 a.m., and hoped to get the 12-member jury, plus two alternates, in the next two days.
