

Shortly after Warren Reynolds was shot in Dallas on January 23, 1964, Darrell Wayne Garner was arrested as a suspect. Betty Mooney MacDonald told the police that Garner was in bed with her at the time of the shooting of Reynolds. A week later, Miss MacDonald was found hanging in the Dallas City Jail.

Garner repeatedly told Jim Garrison that Will Fritz in Dallas had threatened Garner's life.

Garner, 30, is now dead [no date given] of an alleged overdose of heroin. Death came in Metairie, Louisiana near New Orleans. He was buried in Dallas Jan. 24 1970.

Harold Feldman and Vincent J. Salandria (in letter to the editor, Minority of One, Nov 64, p. 22) say that two witnesses observed a man running from the scene of the Reynolds shooting who did not look like Garner and that Reynolds himself said that the assailant was not Garner.
