An Autonomous Army?

With regard to the American servicemen being rotated from the Philippines to Vietnam in such a manner as to satisfy the restriction of not having military visitors there in excess of four days (Post Feb. 6). There is something fundamentally amiss when the armed forces of this country are found to be resorting to legal technicalities to carry on activities which are contrary to the expressed intent of the people. Since when is our Army autonomous? If there be someone in the military chain of command who disagrees with this country's decisions let him quit the service and enter politics as it is only the democratically arrived at directions which can be served with honor.
