

SFChronicle

APR 7, 1975

The debris of nine days at sea mingled with the bodies of refugees on the deck of a barge arriving at Vung Tau

AP Wirephoto

Starving refugees reached out for bread offered by relief workers at the port of Vung Tau diers.

UPI Telephoto

Government offices were hard at work, an unheard-of situation in South Vietnam on a Sunday afternoon, and soldiers were even getting back pay.

Many of the renegade soldiers now roaming Saigon and other parts of South Vietnam had not been in two months, learned yesterday.

In conversation yesterday with dozens had been soldier-headed, southern showed any join his unit fighting.

Government here is Quoc hop in

UPI Telephoto

A ship unloaded a child in a basket