

NYTimesMAY 1, 1975

Reds Rename Saigon

Ho Chi Minh City

PARIS, April 30 (Agence France-Presse) — The Provisional Revolutionary Government of South Vietnam today fulfilled an old pledge by renaming Saigon Ho Chi Minh City.

Vietnamese revolutionaries are believed to have made the pledge to do so shortly after the Geneva agreement of 1954 which cut Vietnam in two roughly at the 17th Parallel.

By renaming the southern capital for him, the South Vietnamese Communists have formally denoted the late North Vietnamese president as the father of the Vietnam nation.