

old husband. He could probably stretch his supplies, she said, "but believe me, every time that phone rings, I think it could be news of him."

NYTimes AUG 2 1975
The British Government has granted Nguyen Van Thieu, now living in Taiwan, a six-month visa to visit his son, a student, and "other family connections" in Britain. Roy Jenkins, the Home Secretary, told Parliament yesterday that any extension would be studied by "the criteria we have traditionally applied."