Value of Human Life

To the Editor:

"A Doctor's Letter to His Son" [Op. Ed. article Nov. 12] is the most tragic newspaper piece I have read since the news of Mylai was reported. That massacre showed the effects of the sickness America suffers.

Dr. Paul Williamson's letter, in which an M.D. reveals the small value he places on human life compared to his reverence for property, clearly shows the cause of our sickness.

We relegate life to a position far below political, philosophic and economic concepts. Can we hope for a generation that will not accept such teachings?
