

The Burning Street

Anti-war demonstrators built barricades and set them afire yesterday morning during rush hour traffic near Farragut Square in northwest Washington. Although traffic was slowed at some points, the city traffic department said the general traffic pattern was "better than on a snow morning."

AP Wirephoto