

U.S. Won't Reopen Case Against ITT

by Susanna McBee

Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson has decided not to reopen the Justice Department's antitrust cases against [ITT], the Senate Judiciary Committee ~~indis~~ revealed yesterday.

The committee indicated that it will neither contest Richardson's decision nor raise the issue again, at least in the near future.

Richardson added that "the public interest would not be served, and could well be injured, by reopening these cases."
