TESTIMONY READ TO CALLEY JURY

Mylai Photos Also Seen on 2d Day of Deliberations

FORT BENNING, Ga., March 18—The jury in the Mylai murder trial of First Lieut. William L. Calley Jr. concluded its second day of deliberations today by asking for a reading of the evidence of several witnesses concerning a charge that Lieutenant Calley had murdered at least 30 Vietnamese at the southern edge of the village.

The six-man military court indicated that it was troubled by this charge, the first of four counts alleging that Lieutenant Calley shot a total of 102 South Vietnamese men, women and children during an alleged massacre three years ago.

The Government had pinpointed the site of the mass killing of the 30 as near the interesection of two trails and entered into evidence a photograph by a combat photographer, Ronald L. Haeberle, showing 25 persons, most of them women and children, lying dead along a trail.

But key prosecution witnesses had been unable to identify the photograph, and the military judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, had told the jurors that unless they were satisfied that the killings occurred at the site alleged by the Government, they must acquit Lieutenant Calley on this charge.

Ill Officer Recovers

The six career officers of the jury resumed deliverations this morning after the brief illness of one officer during the night had threatened a disruption.

At first it was thought that he

out to be transitory.

After deliberating more than six hours with a break for lunch, the jury returned to open court late today for a viewing of ground and aerial photos of Mylai.

The jurors had asked to see the photos and also requested the reading of excerpts from the testimony of six witnesses: former Lieut. Roger Aloux, Mr. Haeberle, former Sgt. Joseph Grimes, Frank Beardslee, an aide to the late Col. Frank A. Barker Jr., commander of Task Force Barker, Christopher Garbow, and Warrant Officer Dean C. Lind, who had flown Colonel Barker's helicopter.

Estimate Are Different

If the jurors are convinced that Lieutenant Calley murdered the Vietnamese group, they must speciafy the exact number or the minimum number of persons they believe that he killed. But the estimates given by the witnesses whose testimony they heard again today were widely different.

Lieutenant Aloux, in his testimony, said that he had counted "eight to 12, more or less"; Mr. Haeberle said that he had seen "50 to 75 people" squatting on a trail, but that when he returned to the general area he found only the 25 corpses he photographed.

Mr. Beardslee said that he had seen "15 to 20 men, women and children" dead in a group "south of the village." Mr. Grimes saw "10 to 12 women and children" on a trail. Mr. Garbow saw "five to 10 bodes," and Mr. Lind saw no bodies at all but recalled hearing Colonel Barker express concern that he thought related to the number of civilian dead.
