

CBS newsman, Mike Wallace, had a chance during this week to speak with Interior Walter Hickel, who wrote a letter to the White House highly critical of the administration's relations with college students.

[Wallace:] I interviewed Mr. Hickel at his home last Sunday afternoon [10 May]. He told me he had not yet heard a word from the President in response to his letter. He also said that a top staff man in the administration had told him to cool it, that both his letter and the killings at Kent State would blow over in 24 hours. "I was appalled," said Secretary Hickel.
