Hickel Rift With Nixon Deeper; Resignation or Dismissal Seen

By E. W. KENWORTHY JUN 1 3 1970 Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, June 12-|tributing to their sense of alien-The relationship between Presi- ation. dent Nixon and Secretary of In several ways, these in-the Interior Walter J. Hickel formants said, the White House has deteriorated to the point has made plain its displeasure where there is widespread with Mr. Hickel and has gone speculation here that Mr. Hickel out of its way to humiliate him will soon resign or be dismissed, publicly.

Reports from Capitol Hill in-mental Quality.

House had not gone out of its sanctuary in the area. way to close the breach opened It was Mr. Hickel, according tion was not sufficiently con- of canceling the leases to precerned with the attitude of young people and was thus con- Continued on Page 19, Column 3

The latest occasion, they dicate that his successor may pointed out, occurred yesterbe Fred J. Russell, whom Mr. day, when Mr. Hickel did not Nixon named Under Secretary appear at the White House for of the Interior last March to a meeting with Mr. Nixon and replace Russell E. Train, who a subsequent press briefing on had been appointed chairman proposed legislation within his of the new Council on Environ- jurisdiction. The bill would cancel 20 Federal oil leases in Close associates at the In- the Santa Barbara Channel, the terior Department, when inter-scene of the massive oil leak viewed today, did not attempt in January, 1969, and create an to hide the fact that the White 18-by-20-mile Federal marine by Mr. Hickel when he wrote to officials in his department letter of complaint to Mr. and several legislators most di-Nixon on May 6. Mr. Hickel rectly connected with the oil said then that the Administra-spill, who originated the idea

HICKEL AND NIXON IN DEEPENING RIFT

Continued From Page 1, Col. 2

serve the coastline against future spills.

It was also known that Mr. Hickel expected to be at the White House for the announcement, and his department had prepared a press release on the bill.

However, according to sources on Capitol Hill, the Secretary received a call from the White House yesterday morning and was told not to appear. The press release was never issued.

When asked about the White House action today, one Interior Department official said,
"The reasons for the maneuver I don't know. We found out yesterday that he wouldn't be there. The plans changed."

Close associates of Mr. Hick-el would not confirm the ru-mors about his imminent de-parture. But neither did they characterize the rumors as without any foundation, thus discarding the usual practice of discarding the usual practice of cial said.

As subordinate when reports circulate that his chief intends to battles we resign under pressure or balles we he had s resign under pressure, or be dismissed.

One Interior official who has Mr. Hickel's confidence, when asked whether the Secretary intended to quit, replied, "I have nothing to substantiate that."

When asked whether thought the President would request Mr. Hickel's resignation, this aide said, "I don't know. My feeling is strongly no."

When the same questions were put to another aide, equally close to the Secretary, he said, "I don't know. You tell me."

Some officials expressed to-day the view that Mr. Hickel would not resign under this kind of pressure but would force the President to dismiss him, if Mr. Nixon wanted him out of the Cabinet

Mr. Hickel has seen the President privately only once since he sent the letter — late on the afternoon of May 28. Afterward Mr. Hickel said that the discussion had been chiefly about department business, although the question of the young had come up but not in the context of his letter, which he said had not been mentioned by the President.

we found

We found

We found

We found

The plans changed."

Reported Deeply Hurt

It was said that Mr. Hickel was deeply hurt and angered by the White House order not to appear for the occasion.

According to some sources, Mr. Hickel was similarly "disinvited" to attend religious services in the White House East Room soon after he sent his letter.

Close associates of Mr. Hickel would not confirm mors about to more sources of the would not confirm mors about the primary against Gov. Keith Miller, his former Lieutenant Governor.

Graceful Departure Doubtes This office.

This office.

to telling the President, "If you want me to go, you'll have to fire me."

"I don't think he's going to walk out gracefully," this offi-

Mr. Hickel has lost several battles with the White House. He had strongly urged, for example, that his department be made a "department on the environment," with responsibility for all antipollution programs, including those of other Hickel's department departments and agencies. Hickel's department have to surrender som

The White House not only rejected this proposal but accepted instead the recommendation of the government reorganization commission, headed by Roy L. Ash, for establishing an independent agency on environmental tablishing an independent agency on environmental protection. Mr. Train of the environmental council supported the Ash plan.
To this new agency, Mr.

have to surrender some of its