Federal Suit Seeks to Permit A Mixed Marriage in Alabama

By JACK ROSENTHAL DEC 4 Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3-The which make it a crime to issue Justice Department asked a such a license.
Federal Court today to strike Probate Judg down provisions of Alabama's tain of Calhoun County, who Constitution and laws that denied the license, and the make it a crime for whites and State of Alabama were named Negroes to marry. It was the as defendants. first such action taken by the Government.

Washington, asked the court to order state officials to permit the marriage of Sgt. Louis Voyer, a white soldier stationed at Fort McClellan, Ala., and

Probate Judge C. Clyde Brit-

The suit said that the judge's action denied the couple their The suit, filed in Birming-constitutional rights against ham, Ala., and announced in improper state action and im-

Continued on Page 16, Column 1

NEWS INDEX

at Fort McClellan, Ala and	Art56 Obituaries48
The state of the s	Art
Phyllis Bett, a black woman	Books 42-43, 49-50 Society
from Anniston.	Bridge
N 44	Business 70, 81 Theaters 54-60
The couple sought a marriage	Crossword
licence More 10 the desert	Editorials46 TV and Radio87
needse 140v. 10, the depart-	Financial69-80 U. N. Proceedings. 2
ment's complaint said, but were	Wan in the News30 Washington Record 16
denied it on the hear of the	Movies54-60 Weather86
defined it off the basis of the	Music 54-60 Momen's News 52 state's Constitution and laws,	News Summary and Index. Page 45

Continued From Page 1, Col. 8

posed an undue burden on the rights of Federal military personnel.

The Federal complaint cited a 1967 Supreme Court decision a 1997 Supreme Court decision that struck down a similar antimiscegenation statute in Virginia. That case was filed privately and did not involve the Federal Government.

At the time of the dicision—June 12, 1967—other states, including Alabama, carried antimiscegenation statutes, Justice Department officials were not able to say today how many of the statutes remained in force.

Subject to Penalty

The department asked for immediate interim Federal orders to permit Sergeant Voyer and Miss Bett to marry and live in Alabama. It said that, otherwise, they intended to marry in another state and, because of the sergeant's military obligation, return to Alabama obligation, return to Alabama obligation, return to Alabama to live.

This would make the couple subject to criminal penalty. A hearing on the request was scheduled by the court for Tuesday.

The suit was filed at the request of the Judge Advocate General's office at Fort Mc-Clellan Clellan.

Taking note of the 1967
Supreme Court decision, the department filling said: "The success of the United States with respect to the merits of this matter is very likely. In this case, the law is clear. There is no doubt that the state cannot constitutionally prohibit racially mixed couples from marrying."

As the Supreme Court stated, the department continued, "freedom to marry has long been recognized as one of the vital personal rights essential to vital personal rights essential to the orderly pursuit of happiness by free men. There is patently no legitimate, overriding purpose independent of invidious discrimination which justifies this classification."

A section of the Alabama Constitution forbids the State Legislature to pass any law permitting whites and Negroes to marry, and a state law forbids such marriages under a maximum penaly of seven years maximum penaly of seven years maximum penaly of seven years in prison.

The Justice Department's suit asked the Federal District Court in Birmingham to order the state to notify appropriate officials of the invalidity of the constitutional and statutory provisions forbidding miscegenation.