'Old Friend' Is Serving on Nixon's Staff

spoker Mr. Johnson said he had first approached about the job

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22—President Nixon has installed an old hometown neighbor, Roger E. Johnson, an oilman, on the White House staff to serve as a liaison with the president's friends in the business community.

Mr. Johnson, 64 years old, coccipies an office in the executive Office Building across the street from the White House. He joined the staff in Septem-tutive Office Building across the street from the White House. He joined the staff in Septem-tutive Office Building across the street from the White House. He joined the staff in Septem-tutive Office Building across the street from the White House. He joined the staff in Septem-tutive Office Building across the street from the White House. He joined the staff in Septem-tutive Office Building across the street from the White House. He joined the staff in Septem-tutive Office Building across the street from the White House. He joined the staff in Septem-tutive Office Building across the street from the White House. He joined the staff in Septem-tutive Office Building across the street from the White House. He joined the staff in Septem-tutive Office Building across the time to, and get their views oir the oil idustry, although before his retirement last summer, when he was summer, when he was summer, when he was summer, when he was summer he was serving as working in London, by Rosemark Woods, the President's confidential secretary. Miss woods said the President had been troubled by continuing reports that he had isolated himself from various points of view and that even some of his old friends in private life were having trouble getting through to him.

Later, he received a similar call from H. R. Haldeman, Mr. Nixon's top administrative aide, house."

Mr. Johnson said he had first approached about the jobs working in London, by Rosemark Woods, the President's confidential secretary. Miss working in London, by Rosemark Woods, the President's confidential secretary. This woods said the President's confidential secretary. This woods said the President's confiden

19

as Liaison to Business Community called him with messages or making role, Mr. Johnson said Oil Company. advice or complaints for the he had seen the President "only President to hear, but he said a couple of times" in the Oval President to hear, but he said that most of his callers seemed to be concerned about the economy.

He said he usually reduced his conversations to memorandums, which he then sends to Peter M. Flanigan, an assistant to the President who keeps in close touch with the financial community; Charles Nixon family. He said he had friend for this job," Mr. John-son recalled, "somebody he knew was sure to be loyal."

Colson, Mr. Nixon's liaison seen the Nixons frequently with special-interest groups; during the late 1940's and Mr. Haldeman, and occasion-through the Eisenhower fra, knew was sure to be loyal."

Mr. Haldeman, and occasion—
Mr. Johnson would not give ally Mr. Nixon himself.

the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—
the names of those who had Disclaiming any major policy—the name of the name of those who had Disclaiming the name of the