Reagan 1st If Agnew Out

PRINCETON (N.J.)— (AP) The Gallup Poll says its latest survey shows Gov. Ronald Reagan of California and Treasury Secretary John B. Connally would be the top vice presidential choices among Republicans if Spiro T. Agnew is not on the 1972 ticket.

If Agnew were in the race, 27 percent of GOP voters would prefer him over six other possible candidates.

The poll said that with Agnew in the race, Reagan would be preferred by 19 percent; Connally 10 percent; Sen. Charles Percy (R-Ill.) 13 percent; Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York, 10 percent; George Romney, secretary of housing and urban development, 8 percent; and Rep. Paul McCloskey, (R-Calif.) 2 percent.

(However, a Nixon-Reagan ticket would be barred by the U.S. Constitution, unless the President or the Governor shifts his voting address to another state. Both officials are Californians and running mates are forbidden by the 12th Amendment from being inhabitants of the same state. The same ban would apply to an even less likely Nixon-McCloskey linkup.)
