

KLEINDIENST SCORED ON 1970 KIDNAPPING

SEATTLE, March 26 (UPI)—A Seattle architect said today that he had written the Senate Judiciary Committee protesting the appointment of Richard G. Kleindienst as Attorney General because, he said, Mr. Kleindienst had "frustrated" an opportunity for the early release of his kidnapped father-in-law.

Dennis F. Kane, son-in-law of Dr. Claude L. Fly, the United States soils expert who was kidnapped in Uruguay in 1970, said Mr. Kleindienst had recommended that Dr. Fly be "sacrificed."

Mr. Kane charged that Mr. Kleindienst, who was Deputy Attorney General at the time of the incident, "lacks the most important qualities necessary as a representative figurehead in the judicial branch: tact, true concern for human rights and wisdom."

Mr. Kane said that Dr. Fly had "an excellent opportunity to be released" in December, 1970, while he was "still a healthy man." Uruguyan guerrillas kidnapped Dr. Fly on Aug. 7, 1970, and released him in poor health on March 2, 1971.
