

What! No Moat?

AUG 20 1972

The Doral Turned Into a Fortress

SF Examiner

MIAMI BEACH — (AP) — The Republicans have taken over one of Miami Beach's fanciest hotels for $100,000 and turned it into a fortress.

Guards to the left, guards to the right, guards in the hallways and guards outside.

The only thing lacking at the 17-floor Doral Hotel is a moat.

Security is tight enough to guard a president, but President Nixon won't be staying there.

To get into the Doral you must show a badge. To walk around, you must be escorted.

One newsman, being escorted to the hotel sales manager's office, was stopped eight times to show identification. So was the escort, an official of the committee.

A month ago, when Democratic presidential hopefuls and their staffs were here, the Doral was headquarters for Sen. George McGovern.

A happy informality reigned — kids in sunsuits, tieless staff members and a lot of bustling.

McGovern had three floors for himself and his staff, and the huge meeting rooms with the fake-cloud plaster ceilings on the lobby level were for the press.

The Republicans took over the whole hotel — 420 sleeping rooms at $30 to $80 a night, ballrooms that can seat 1300, Starlight Roof, Iberian Conference Rooms, the Spanish Court Yard and all the things the Doral advertises as "facilities in the sun."