Cuba Reported Firm on Jailing Hijackers

NYTIMOS
By RICHARD WITKIN

Cuban authorities at José Marti Airport in Havana said Orlando, Fla., on the final leg gines that they could take off the three gunmen who hijacked to Cuba Saturday night. a Southern Airways jet there over the weekend would spend the rest of their lives agents of the rederal Bureau of "might be to drive out a big in "four-by-four-foot" Investigation, presumably with truck to block the runway or the approval of officials of the damage, the release but a release but the approval of officials of the damage, the release but the approval of officials of the damage. boxes, the head of the Federal Aviation Administration, John H. Shaffer said arranged by the approval of officials of the starts its takeoff arranged by the approval of officials of the arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the production of the production of the production of the production of the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the production of the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the production of the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the production of the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the production of the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before it starts its takeoff arranged by the plane before its plane by the plane before its plane by the plane by H. Shaffer, said yesterday.

have made clear to Americans seemingly endless city-hopping four crew members (two pilots on the flight that the hijackers, drama except to try to immobilize the plane but that the tion to the hijackers, did take charges and one a fugitive job had been bungled. from a Nashville jail, would be jailed like criminals. They will comment, said: not be treated as political

the meantime over the shooting Another highly placed Gov-Continued on Page 34, Column 3

out of the two left tires of the ernment expert said modern twin-jet DC-9 just before or airliners like the twin-jet DC-9 after it started its takeoff from had so much power in their en-

The action was taken by "The best thing," he said, agents of the Federal Bureau of "might be to drive out a big that there was probably little The Cubans were said to choice at that juncture in the carrying 27 passengers and of rubber into one of the engines, which sparked furiously.

Billy Harloyd Johnson, the refugees seeking asylum, the Cubans added.

When you do it, you should gaines, which sparked latitudity.

Billy Harloyd Johnson, the co-pilot, of College City, Ark., Argument was building up off the ground and create more was shot in the left shoulder by in the aviation community in danger in the process."

even if the brakes were locked.

The predominant view was ing a truck into the nose gear."

off despite its damaged tires One top official, in a typical and some apparent indigestion

Continued From Page I, Col. 3

one of the gunmen, who were infuriated by the shooting of the tires. Capt. William R.Haas of LaGrange, Tenn., finally set the plane down on a foam-carthe plane down on a foam-car-peted Havana runway, more sparks flying as the rims of the damaged left wheels touched the asphalt. The landing roll was bumpy but the onlyinjuries were to two passengers who hurt themselves in the quick hurt themselves in the quick evacuation.

It was the end of a 29-hour 4,000 mile ordeal that had begun while the jet was flying from Birmingham to Montgomery, Ala., and included eight prior stops at seven different cities cities.

Confiscated Money

The Cuban authorities marched the hijackers away, machine guns aimed at their backs, and confiscated the $2-million in ex-tortion money they had re-ceived, threatening otherwise to crash the plane into the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic plant.

All the weary but relieved passengers and crew were flown back to Miami in a sister plane late Sunday.

There was no indication that the Cubans would alter past policy and accede to United States requests for the return of the hijackers or the money. There has been only one previous instance when an American instance when a second in the control of t There has been only one previous instance when an American hijacker has arrived in Cuba with extortion money. On that occasion, the $300,000 was confiscated by the Cubans, saying it was reparations for Cubans funds frozen here.

The State Department, nevertheless, went out of its way yesterday to express the "appreciation" of the United States to Cuba for her cooperation in handling the weekend hijacking.

handling the weekend hijacking.

'Friendly Gesture'

In what other officials described as a deliberate and unusual "friendly gesture" toward Havana, the department spokesman, John F. King, said the department shared the airline's "appreciation for the cooperation shown the aircrat crew and passengers by Cuban offi and passengers by Cuban officials."

Mr. King said Southern Airways officials had told Secretary of State William P. Rogers that Cuba had been cordial to the passengers and crew, and "most cooperative" in preparing for the emergency landing and allowing technicians to fly to Havana to repair the hijacked plane for return to this country.

On the matter of the controversial tire-shooting in Orlando, much of the criticism came from local officials and airport personnel.
Police Chief Robert Chewning

complained of a lack of com-munications between his department and the F.B.I. agents. He said the local authorities never knew whether local F.B.I. agents were in charge or other agents who flew in on special planes.

The F.B.I. refused to comment on what happened in Orlando or any other aspects of lando or any other aspects of the hijacking.

Another complaint against the F.B.I. came from Michael L. Goff, supervisor for Aircraft Service International, Inc., at the Orlando airport. He had fueled and oiled the hijacked jet and was walking away from the wing, he said, when the F.B.I. marksmen opened fire.

"They never told me there were agents surrounding me and they were going to shoot," he said. "If they had hit the fuel truck, that would have been it for me, the airplane and everything else."