The Washington Merry-Go-Round

avors for Campaign Funds Cited

By Jack Anderson

Sources close to President Nixon's fund-raising effort last year say government favors were exchanged for campaign contributions. A donation over $100,000 they say, would enti-tle a contributor to a quid pro

We have turned our information over to Sen. Frank Moss (D-Utah), whose consumer sub-committee a quiet investigation into the impact of secret cambaign deals upon the consumer sub-committee and the secret cambaign deals upon the consumer sub-consumer su paign deals upon the con

Throughout the government alphabet—from CAB to SEC contributors contributors received nomic benefits, which eco: which helped to fuel inflation and to weaken the dollar.

From our files, here highlights we have supplied to the Senate:

Dairy Dollars

President Nixon's personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach, was turned down by the milk industry when he couldn't promise a quid pro quo in return for campaign cash.

The dairymen made an end run around him to the White House, where a commitment was made to raise money for the Nixon campaign. The day was delivered, dairy price supports were increased over the the enforceement of new flam-dent's oval office.

The increased supports brought the dairy farmers an extra estimated $500 million supports extra estimated $500 million from the taxpayers. Dairy tycoon William Powell, in a personal letter explaining the deal, noted: "Whether we like it of not, this is the way the system works."

McDonald's hamburger king Arthur Kroc donated a whopping $225,000 to re-elect President Nixon. This was 225 times more than the $1,000 Kroc had contributed to Mr. Nixon's 1968 campaign. The Price Commission, just before the election allowed Kroc a 10 the election, allowed Kroc a 10 per cent increase in the price of his cheeseburgers. The comexplained mission it had okayed the hike because Kroc vas adding more cheese on his burgers.

manufacturers do-Carpet nated nearly $200,000 that we can trace to Mr. Nixon's campaign. One major contributor, Coronet Industries President Martin Bud Seretean, gave $94,000 in 30 separate donations in mid-August.

The money poured into Republican coffers at the same after the first big contribution time the carpet lobby was desperately trying to postpone objection of the Agriculture mability regulations. Finance Department. One source told Committee Chairman Maurice layed.

In-house Union?

Of all the unions, the Teamers raised the most money for the Nixon campaign. They got favored treatment, according to insiders, from the Cost of Living Council. "The Teamsters are considered the in-house union here," a council lawyer told us. The Feamster's key man is Don Cagle, a union representative on the wage stabilization appeals panel. "Cagle's opinions always get prompt attention," said our source.

Similarly, the money poured in from bankers, brokers, in-surance tycoons, real estate surance operations and oilmen who responded to Maurice Stans' appeal that rich Republicans do-nate I per cent of their gross income.

What the senators want to know is whether the house-wives are now paying back the big contributors tenfold in the form of higher prices.

Captive Audience

Transportation Secretary Claude Brinegar traveled to his native California last his native month to speak before a luncheon crowd of transporta-

What Brinegar didn't know

us Agriculture Secretary Earl Stans arranged a White House was that many of his adoring Butz got his instructions at a meeting for the carpet men. listeners were federal employmenting right in the Bresi-Result: enforcement was deto attend with government funds. Here's how it worked:

When it was learned the Secretary would make an ap-pearance at the Los Angeles luncheon, local Federal Aviation Administration officials, come under Department who of Transportation jurisdiction, apparently decided it would good politics for the FAA to show up in force. They, therefore, arranged for 85 of their employees to attend the affair. Two buses were rented, at a cost of $50 each, to ferry the bureaucrats to the Los Angeles Conven-tion Center, where Brinegar was to speak.

One of the major problems the FAA officials faced, however, was the wat tickets. So they declared speech "an official Brinegar's speech "an official government activity" and quietly returned to each participating employee $8 of the "registration fee."

Final cost to the taxpayers: nearly $800 for tickets and buses, not counting the hundreds of man-hours lost while the FAA bureaucrats paid court to their boss.

A spokesman for the FAA's western regional office insisted that the agency's employees did not attend the luncheon simply addressing an unusually enthusiastic audience.

What Brinegar didn't know

@ 1973. United Feature Syndicate