WXPost 1 9 1973 Nixon Aides Now Fill Key Agency Jobs

By Sanford J. Ungar Washington Post Staff Writer

Although many people P who worked in the White イレイト House during President Nixon's first term and in his reelection campaign are now in legal trouble arising out of the Watergate affair, many more are in power in 1 Cabinet departments and in-dependent federal regula-ST tory agencies. It became clear shortly af-ter last November's presi-dential election .that Mr. Nixon wanted to make the government more "responsive" by putting individuals with established lovalty to the White House into key positions.

Except for a few well-publicized major appoint-ments, including the nomi-nations of Frank C. Carlucci as under secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and Al-exander P. Butterfield as administrator of the Federal

See JOBS, A12, Col. 7

JOBS, From A1

Aviation Administration, the success of the effort has not previously been clear.

But according to partial surveys conducted by con-gressional committees and The Washington Post, it has resulted in the distribution of well over 100 people throughout the federal bureaucracy.

This practice, of course, is not original. Andrew Jack-son introduced the "spoils system" early in the 19th Century and every adminis-tration has rewarded its po-litical eallies with litical allies with governmental appointments.

In the case of the present administration, people once employed by the Committee for the Re-election of the President, the Inaugural Committee, the White House or within the Execu-tive Office of the President, are now serving in roles ranging from policy makers to clerks and typists.

The arrived at their new jobs, for the most part, qui-etly and without fanfaresometimes even without the knowledge of the agency head they work for.

In the view of some leadin the view of some lead-ers on Capitol Hill, such as Rep. Harley O. Staggers (D-W.Va.), chairman of the House Interstate and For-eign Commerce Committee, the phenomenon poses the phenomenon poses grave prospects of executive and political domination of theoretically independent agencies.

CRP, at its peak, employed 425 people, according to a spokesman, and The Post's partial survey indi-cates that at least 30 per cent of them have obtained federal employment since the 1972 election.

Staggers' Special Subcommittee on Investigations polled the Department of Commerce and 12 other-agencies under its jurisdiction recently and discovered that 84 people previously tied to the President's cam-paign or the Executive Of-fice have been farmed out into the agencies ranks.

By far the biggest response came from the Com-merce Department, where 25 employees with links to the President, including two departmental executives have arrived since the election.

The best known. course, is Jeb Stuart Magruder, who, after serving as deputy campaign director of CRP and executive director of OR Mr. Nixon's inaugural committee took over the Commerce Department's Office of Policy Development last March.

Magruder resigned after he became implicated in the Watergate scandal, but many others were left behind.

Alex M. Armendaris, for example, who was director of CRP's "Spanish-speaking committee" for a full year, became director of the department's Office of Minor-ity Business enterprise last April 10. He had previously been a consultant to the President's Advisory Coun-cil on Minority Business.

John F. Evans, who was assistant director of the White House Domestic Council under former presi-dential aide John D. Ehrl-ichman for 2½ years, moved over to become an assistant to Commerce Secretary Frederick B. Dent.

As the Commerce Depart-As the commerce Depart-ment explained in its re-sponse to Staggers, Evans "performs duties which en-compass the entire scope of the department's programs and activities."

Close behind the Com-merce Department was the Environmental Protection Agency, which listed 20 peo-ple, including seven consultants, who came aboard after being closely associated ants, who came under associated being closely associated with the campaign or the Executive Office. Some had relevant experience with such units as the Council on Environmental Quality or the Office of Science and Technology.

But others clearly poli came from political backgrounds grounds — for example, EPA's public affairs director, Ann L. Dore, who had worked with CRP since De-cember, 1971, and George R. Mehocic, who served four months with CRP before becoming a "confidential rep-resentative" to the White House for an assistant administrator at EPA.

Two former employees of CRP, Theodore Wigger and Alice C. Johnston, are now working in the environmental agency's Boston regional office.

James W. Hunt was a $70a-day consultant to EPA for four months beginning last December after working with CRP's state organizawith CRP's state organiza-tion in Illinois. A graduate student from California, Brian L. Gauthier, who worked with CRP in that state, earned $54 a day for three months for providing "expert advice" to the direc-tor of EPA's office of Educa-tion and Manpower Plan-ning.

The former administrator of EPA, William D. Ruckelshaus—who served more re-cently as acting director of the FBI and is now awaiting a major Justice Department appointment-said yesterday through a spokesman that he recognized only 3 of the 22 names on that agen-cy's list.

Ruckelshaus that he personally approved those three on the basis of their qualifications, but did not understand how the othexplained ers got their jobs.

The Agriculture Depart-The Agriculture Depart-ment hired 17 people from CRP and three from the White House after the elec-tion, in a variety of posi-tions, but many have al-ready left for other jobs.

One who is still there, serving as a "confidential assistant" to Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, is Stephen B. King, the former CRP security guard who Stephen B. King, the former CRP security guard who served as a bodyguard for Martha Mitchell, wife of for-mer Attorney General John N. Mitchell, and allegedly injected her with a sedative in California on the week-end of the Watergate break-in last June.

There were a number of surprises on the lists pro-vided to Congress and The Washington Post by the departments.

For example, one woman, For example, one woman, Nancy H. Steorts, who for-merly worked at CRP, ' showed up on the Com-merce Department list as an "expositions officer." But the Agriculture Department insisted yesterday that she is special assistant to Butz for consumer affairs.

One of the agencies wherethe arrival of White House loyalists has caused the greatest consternation is the Veterans Administration.

VA Administrator Donald Johnson recently sent a E. letter to Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), chairman of the Senate Appropriations Subcommittee with jurisdic-tion over the VA budget, with a list of 11 former CRP personnel now working for him, seven of them on his personal staff.

One long-time VA em-ployee concerned with direc-tion of the agency's hospitals across the country, who asked that his name not be publicly disclosed, said yesterday that he was aston-ished by the extent to which the White House has injected itself into VA affairs.

He compared the situation to "the formation of con-glomerates, where a vice president or administrative assistant is sent out from the home office to call all the shots."

Research for this story was done by Bridget Gal-lagher of The Washington Post's national news staff. Parker Jayne, formerly with CRP from 8/72 to 10/72 as well as in the Executive Office of the President from 10/72 to 12/72, currently a trade specialist in the Bureau of East-West Trade, Domestic and International Business Administration.

Eric Kihl, formerly with CRP, cur-rently an international trade specialist in the Bureau of East-West Trade, Domestic and International Business Administration.

Edward Kinnear, formerly with CRP, currently an exhibit manager at the Bureau of International Commerce, Domestic and International Business Administration.

Domestic and International Business Administration. Nancy H. Steorts, formerly with CRP and the Inaugural Committee, currently an expositions officer at the Bureau of International Commerce, Domestic and International Business Administration. Warren S. Chase, formerly with CRP, currently a confidential assistant to the assistant secretary for maritime affairs. Edward D. Failor, formerly with CRP, was employed by the Department of Transportation from 11/72 until 3/73 and is now administrator of the Social and Economic Statistics Administration. Norman E. Watts, former field repre-sentative with CRP, was employed by the Department of Transportation from 1/73 to 4/73 and Is currently a confi-dential assistant to the administrator of Social and Economic Statistics Ad-ministration.

Social and Economic Statistics Ad-ministration. Diana L. Lozano, former adminis-trative assistant at CRP, currently a confidential assistant to the director to the Office of Minority Business Enterprise. John F. Evans, former assistant. di-rector, Domestic Council, White House, currently assistant to the Secretary. Édward L. Blecksmith, former staff assistant to the director of communica-fions, White House, currently special as-sistant at the Bureau of Resources and Trade Assistance. Domestic and Inter-national Business Administration. Thornton J. Parker, formerly with the Office of Management and Budget, currently a computer systems analyst serving as special assistant to the chief of systems development at National Bu-reau of Standards. Prior to his em-ployment with OMB he was with the Department of Commerce.

List of Nixon Aides In New U.S. Jobs

Following is a partial list of persons formerly employed in President Nixon's 1972 campaign effort or in the White House and the Executive Office of the President during Mr. Nixon's first term, who are now employed in Cabinet departments and independent regulatory agencies:

agencies: Department of Commerce Alex M. Armendaris, former director of Spanish-speaking division, CRP, cur-rently director of the Office of Mi-mority Business Enterprise: Business Enterprise: Yolande P. Dorminy, former execu-live secretary at the Finance Commit-tet to Re-elect the President, currently secretary at the Finance Commit-tet to Re-elect the President, currently rivate secretary to the assistant secre-tary for tourism. Richard F. Efmann, former assistant to the director of tield services for CRP, currently private secretary at FCRP, currently private secretary to the assistant secretary for tourism. Andre E. LeTendre, former associate executive director at CRP, was special desistant secretary for durism. Andre E. LeTendre, former associate executive director at CRP, was special Questint to the administrator, National Qceanic Atmospheric Administration, the assistant secretary for administra-tion. Andre Merent to the Commerce Department and is currently deputy for the assistant secretary for administra-tion. Jub Stuart Magruder, former deputy tion. Jeb Stuart Magruder, former deputy campaign director, CRP, and executive director of the haugural Committee, became director, Office of Policy De-velopment, until his resignation April 27, 1973.

Z7, 1973. Joseph M. Mandato, formerly with CRP and deputy director, medias pro-gram book division, 1973 inaugural dommittee, currentiv special assistant to the assistant secretary for domestic and international business. Robert S. Milligan, formerly with CRP and consultant at Environmental Protection Agency, currently confi-dential assistant to the special assistant for-policy development. Ellen M. Wagner, former staff as-for administration. C. Langhorne Washburn, former deputy chairman, FCRP, became special assistant to the Secreary from 12/72 until 4/73 and is currently assistant secretary for tourism.

Ellen M. Wagner, former staff as-skstant, CRP, currently administrative assistant in office of assistant secretary for administration.

A secretary for tourism. , Lames Francis, formerly with CRP, currently deputy exhibit manager with the Bureau of International Commerce, Domestic and International Business Administration.

Clark R. Renninger, formerly with the Office of Management and Budget, is currently staff assistant for com-puter utilization programs in the office of the director, Institute for Computer Sciences and Technology.

Sciences and Technology. William F. Dougherty, formerly with the White House, was special assistant to the director, Bureau of the Census, Social and Economic Statistics Admin-istration until May 1, 1973. Department of Agriculture John C. Foltz, former assistant for agriculture division, CRP, is currently deputy under secretary of agriculture. S. B. King, former security guard with CRP is currently a contidential assistant to the Secretary. G. Bruner, formerly with CRP, -is Generating to the secretary. G. Bruner, formerly with CRP, is currently confidential assistant to the administrator, Food-Nutrition Service. L. W. Dunn, formerly with CRP is currently a consultant.

administrator, Food-Nutrilion Service.
L. W. Dunn, formerly with CRP is currently a consultant.
Veronica Haggart, former administrative assistant for the assistant iscretary, marketing and consumer affairs.
C. Beecher, formerly with CRP, is currently private secretary to the confidential assistant to the Secretary.
C. Beecher, formerly with CRP, is currently private secretary to the confidential assistant to the Secretary.
Kimberly Moore, formerly with CRP, is currently private secretary to the confidential assistant to the Secretary.
Kimberly Moore, formerly with CRP, is currently confidential assistant to the Secretary.
Nancy Steorts, former volunteer in wolunteers division, CRP, is currently special assistant to the Secretary for consumer affairs.
Clayton Yeutter, former regional director, Agriculture Division, CRP, is currently aconsumer Services.
Gary K. Madson, former deputy director, Agriculture Division, CRP, is currently deputy administrator, Rural Development Service.
James L. Minton, formerly with CRP, is currently confidential assistant to the deputy undersecretary.
Paul VanderMyde, formerly on White House, is currently a mail clerk.
Veterans Administration, research and education.
Catherine Brown, formerly with the White House, is currently a mail clerk.
Veterans Administration, assistant to the administration.
Frank W. Naylor, Jr., former national director, veterans division, CRP, is currently executive assistant to the administration.

acting assistant administrator for management and evaluation, Larry C. Triplett, formerly with CRP, Is currently confidential assistant to executive assistant for administration. Clarice R. Woodley, formerly with CRP, is currently staff assistant to the executive assistant.

CRP, is currently staff assistant, vet-erans Division, CRP, is currently staff assistant to the special assistant. Vet-erans Division, CRP, is currently staff assistant to the special assistant. Anne H. Wallace, former secretarv in Veterans Division, CRP, is currently staff assistant to the special assistant. Carol H, Willis, formerly with CRP, is currently staff assistant to the chair-man, special projects staff. Patrick Sullivan, formerly with CRP, is currently a management analyst, management and evaluation staff, VACO. George Dabrowski, formerly with CRP, is currently a frainee on manage-ment and evaluation staff, VACO. Michael Venuto, formerly with CRP, is currently a frainee on manage-ment and evaluation staff, VACO. Michael Venuto, formerly with CRP, is currently staff assistant, San Fran-cisco regional office. James Smith, former field man, Vet-erans Division, CRP, is currently staff assistant, Lincoln, Neb. regional office. Federal Trade Commission Arthur L. Amolsch, formerly in public relations division, CRP, and with the inaugural committee, is currently infec-tor, Office of Public Information. Michael H. Abrams, formerly in Jewish vote division of CRP, is cur-ently general attorney, office of general counsel.

counsel. Peter P. L. Broccoletti, former assistant at CRP, became a con-sultant, AID, Department of State, from 1/73 to 5/73 and is currently trial attorney, Bureau of Consumer Protection.

Protection. Soft Description of Consumer Theodore J. Garrish, formerly in polling and research division of CRP and with Inaugural Committee, is cur-rently trial attorney, Bureau of Con-sumer Protection. MartNa H. Duncan, former assistant to the Director of Administration, CRP, is currently secretary in the Office of the Chairman. Robert E. Montgomery Jr., formerly general counsel, Office of Consumer Affairs, currently assistant general counsel for legislation and congressional liaison.

Ilaison. Its togstation and congressional Robert J. Lewis, former staff as-sistant to president in office of Lewis A. Engman, Domestic Council, currently legal adviser to the chairman. Elizabeth Tulous, former personal secretary to Lewis A. Engman, Do-mestic Council, currently secretary to the chairman. John Fuller, former writer for CRP, currently a speech writer for the com-mission.

Federal Aviation Administration

Federal Aviation Administration Alexander P. Butterfield, formerly with Executive Office of the President, currently administrator, FAA. William A. Plissner, formerly with Office of Economic Opportunity, cur-rently director of the Office of Budget. Louis J. Churchville, formerly with Office of Economic Opportunity, cur-rently director of the Office of Public Affairs. Ruth A. Edmonston, formerly with Office of Economic Opportunity, cur-rently secretary to deputy director, Of-fice of. Public Affairs. Frederic A. Meister Jr., formerly with Office of Management and Budg-et, currently deputy associate admin-istrator for plans.

Department Of The Interior Marilyn Army, formerly with CRP, is currently confidential assistant to the deputy solicitor. Tim Austin, formerly with CRP, is currently Special Assistant to Director, National Parks Service. Jon Foust, formerly in Tour Office at CRP, is currently special assistant to the director, National Parks Service.

Service. Douglas O. Lee, formerly with CRP, is currently confidential assistant to secretary, Office of Communications. Robert McCann, formerly with CRP, is currently special assistant to the Assistant Secretary for Management, detailed to Office of OII and Gas. John Venners, formerly with CRP, is currently confidential assistant to secretary, detailed to Office of OII and Gas.

secretary, detailed to Office of Oil and Gas. John Whitaker, formerly on White House staff, is currently under secre-tary. Ronald Walker, formerly on White House staff, is currently director, National Parks Service. Doug Blazer, formerly on White House staff, is currently executive as-sistant to the director, National Parks Service. Julia Ann Rowe, formerly on White House staff, is currently assistant to the director, National Parks Service. Marsha C. Griswold, formerly on White House staff, currently confiden-tial assistant to the director, National Parks Service. Brad Hainesworth, formerly of Office of Economic Opportunity, currently Deputy Assistant Secretary for Land and Water.

of Economic Upportunity, Containing, Deputy Assistant Secretary for Land and Water. Eric Zaussner, formerly with the President's Council on Environmental Quality, currently deputy assistant to the Secretary for energy and minerals. Environmental Protection Agency Leslie A. 'Arsht, formerly in press department, CRP, as well as employed in Executive Office, is currently in-formation assistant. Ann L. Dore, formerly in public re-lations press division, CRP, and in-augural committee, is currently direc-tor, public affaire, is currently direc-tor, public affaire, is currently spe-cial assistant for health effects. Anton B. Schmalze, formerly in Office of Science and Technology, currently spe-cial assistant for health effects. Anton B. Schmalze, formerly in Office of Management and Budget, currently consultant, Office of Research and Moni-toring.

Glen E. Schweitzer, formerly with Na-tional Council on Marine Resources and Engineering Resources, currently di-rector, Office of Toxic Substances. Michael P. Scott, formerly with the November Group, Inc., currently con-sultant. Theodore Wigger, former field co-ordinator with CRP, is currently pro-gram analyst on temporary appointment. Trasury Department John C. Gartland, rormerly with CRP, is currently deputy to assistant secre-tary for administration. Gary Burhop, former assistant on Young Voter staff at CRP, is currently confidential assistant to Deputy Assist-ant Secretary Clawson. Maureen Devlin, former receptionist at CRP, is currently an assistant to John Gartland.

Maureen Devlin, former receptionist at CRP, is currently an assistant to John Gartland. Robin Cleary, formerly of the Cali-fornia committee of CRP, is currently a staff assistant to William Gifford, as-sistant to the Secretary. John Caulfield, former personal aide with CRP, was employed by the Bu-reau of Alcohol. Tobacco and Firearms until his resignation May 24, 1973. Edward Morgan, formerly on White House staff, is currently assistant sec-retary for enforcement, tariff and trade affairs and operations. James Clawson, formerly on White House staff, currently deputy assistant secretary for enforcement, tariff and trade affairs and operations. James Clawson, formerly on White House staff, currently an economist in the International Affairs Office. Nancy Nugent, formerly on White House staff, currently assistant to Dep-uty Assistant Secretary Clawson. Marie Elarine Andree LaRoche, for-merly on White House staff, currently secretary to Ronald B. Brooks, execu-tive assistant to Secretary Shultz; William L. Gifford, formerly on White House staff, is currently assistant to Secretary Shultz for legislative affairs.