ANOTHER famous first for San Francisco — curb-service self-help purse-snatching! Monday, a young woman was waiting for a bus at a Mission streetcorner when a car containing five uglies pulled alongside and one snapped, "Throw your purse in the car or we take you with us." Scared witless, she complied and off they sped.

INSIDE STUFF: A little bit of 1440 San Pablo in Berkeley, home of Jacuzzi, may now be found at 1600 Pennsylvania in Washington, home of youkno-whozi. On doctor's orders "to relieve nervous tension," Mr. Nixon has had a $1500 whirlpool bath installed in the White House, and the Jacuzzi people are nervously tense for fear I'll tie the tub into some bum joke about watergates, but danged if I can think of one . . . Patter of tiny feet: The opening of the S.F. Ballet's annual Christmas spectacle, "The Nutcracker," at the Opera House Sat. night will be broadcast live by KKHI. A ballet on the radio isn't unheard of. In February, the geniuses in the city will "refurbish and" a cost
