

NYTimes DEC 29 1973
BURGER SON'S PAY
AT G.S.A. REPORTED

NORFOLK, Va., Dec. 27 (AP)
—Wade A. Burger, son of Chief Justice of the United States Warren E. Burger, is drawing a government salary of $25,863 more than seven times what he had earned as a real estate salesman, The Norfolk Virginian-Pilot said Thursday.

The paper said Mr. Burger was employed by the General Services Administration with a title of "special assistant to the assistant commissioner for the office of space management."

Mr. Burger's personnel file, parts of which the paper said were disclosed by a G.S.A. spokesman, reportedly show his duties are to coordinate work between the office of space management and its parent agency, the Public Building Service.

Pete McCall, a public relations man for the General Services Administration, was quoted by the paper as saying Mr. Burger was the first person to hold the job.

Mr. Burger, 37 years old, earned an average of $3,270 during his last three years as a salesman of houses for Crowell & Company Inc., a Northern Virginia real estate concern the paper said.