Mr. Nixon and the Press:

NYTimes

ings with editors and publishers around the country.

His policy has evoked complaints not only from Washington newsmen but also from students of the political scene. Some have deplored the infrequency and irregularity of the news conferences. Some have fore a hostile crowd in San

By MAX FRANKEL

Special to The New York Times
WASHINGTON, Dec. 9—
President Nixon will hold his first news conference in 19 weeks tomorrow evening, and the event has raised many more questions here than he can possibly handle in the alloted 29-minute television slot. When the President last submitted to the event has raised many more any expectation shore than any governal content and possibly handle in the allotted spannitute elevision slot, When the President lise vision of southers with the President law of the warm of his policies at the form. There had been no acknowledged bombing and landing in North Vienam There was no dispute about the President law of the warm of the warm of the warm of spots of the president law of the warm of the warm of spots of the president law of the warm of the warm of spots of the president law of the warm of spots of the president law of the warm of spots of the warm of spots of the president law of the warm of spots of the president law of the warm of spots of the president law of the warm of the warm of spots of the president law of the warm of the work of the president law of the warm of the work of the president law of the warm of the work of the president law of the warm of the work of the work of the warm of the work of hower.

President Nixon has steadlate the 1968 "understanding"
on a bombing halt and do you fastly refused to commit himself to any fixed schedule of meetings with the press, reserving the right to decide when they served the public (and the Administration's) interest and suggesting that he often preferred other forms of communication such as formal speeches and background brieflongs with editors and publishers around the country.

His policy has evoked comlate the 1968 "understanding"
on a bombing halt and do you plan other new forms of attack? With negotiations going the only remaining path out of the war? If that is going weil, can you announce another anunal target for troop withdrawal or a deadline for total disengagement? How long will in combat in Asia? How will in combat in Asia? How will
"Vietnamization" win the release of American prisoners?

DECEMBER 10, 1970

beginning 30 Sep 70