

Eisenhower As Sports Columnist

Philadelphia

President Nixon's son-in-law, David Eisenhower, has been hired as a "contributing" sports columnist by the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

He's going to be doing quite a bit on the Philadelphia baseball scene," sports editor Herb Stutz said, "but that doesn't exclude doing other things.

"He's very knowledgeable about baseball," Stutz added. "We felt that it would be very fine to have someone with his knowledge and age group trying to reach our readers of that age."

Eisenhower's first column is expected to appear the latter part of this month. He is scheduled to write one column a week while working fulltime through the summer.

Two summers ago Eisen-

AP Wirephoto

DAVID EISENHOWER Newspaper columnist

hower worked for the Washington Senators, keeping statistics for the former American League franchise.

United Press