

Most Outspoken

by Dorothy McCardle and Jeannette Smyth

She's rapidly becoming the most outspoken and available Nixon and, yesterday, Julie Nixon Eisenhower was at it again, speaking out in defense of her father.

A speech at the Washington Hilton last night to an American Association of University Women conference brought her tally of public appearances this week to six.

In contrast, her sister, Tricia Cox, has made only two public appearances in more than three weeks. Both were on Monday [18 Jun], when she was among those who greeted Soviet Communist Party chief Leonid Brezhnev on the White House lawn, and when she attended the state dinner in Brezhnev's honor the same evening.
