Nixon's Hometown Visitors

Washington

President Nixon treated a group of tourists from his home town of Whittier, Calif., like visiting royalty yesterday.

When he heard that 45 senior citizens from his native town were in the White House as part of a five-week bus tour, Mr. Nixon asked them into the Oval Office.

After reminiscing a while, the President invited them to have coffee with Mrs. Nixon in the Yellow Oval Room, where important guests relax before state dinners.

"Coming from Whittier, you are all going to be kings and queens," Mr. Nixon said.
